Astro's 'waltz' in space

HOUSTON (UPI) — Two skyhook astronauts whizzed through a simple spacewalk Saturday collecting six rolls of precious pictures of the sun that could hold the key to man's understanding of earth's energy source.

Moonwalking veteran Alan L. Bean, and scientist Owen K. Garriott, clad in cumbersome white spacesuits, waltzed outside the station that has been their home for 90 days to replace the film cassettes in the powerful solar telescopes.

Black general takes D.C. post

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Maj. Gen. Frederic E. Davison, the black officer who broke racial barriers in the Army's top command was named Friday to take charge of all Army troops in the nation's capital.

A Pentagon spokesman said Davison, now commander of the 8th Infantry Division at Bad Kreuznach, West Germany, would assume command of the military district of Washington Nov. 12.

Israeli military supremacy cited

By United Press International President Habib Bourguiba of Tunisia said in an interview published Saturday that Israel could roll over Arab lands from the Nile to the Euphrates anytime it wanted, even against united Arab opposition.

Bourguiba said time favors Israel, not the Arabs, and he doubted peace negotiations could begin soon because neither side will drop its preconditions for such talks.

Miss America slaps 'Big Brother'

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (UPI) — Miss America, Rebecca Ann King of Colorado, said Friday she would stick to her stand on legalizing marijuana and a woman's right to abortion.

"I feel all individuals should be able to make moral decisions," she said. "The government can't be a big brother, from Marijuana to seat belts. Abortion is not necessarily my moral choice nor is marijuana."

Gooding pay hike OK'd

By PEGGY CHU
Times-News writer

GOODING — District Judge Charles Scoglio authorized a 10 per cent increase in salaries for Gooding County employees Friday.

Scoglio's approval was necessary because the county budget approved in February had to be increased to cover the raise.

The raise was retroactive to August this year and applies to all employees except commissioners, prosecuting attorney and coroner.

According to the commissioners' petition to the court, the raise "represents a cost-of-living increase made necessary by the economic conditions in the country as a whole."

According to a spokesman for the county clerk's office, the raises will not increase local taxes. Surpluses which had been included in the budget will be used to pay the cost.

The spokesman said no figures were yet available of the increased cost of the salary hikes.

US eyed Canada invasion

TORONTO (UPI) — The Toronto Star reported Saturday that the U.S. massed tanks and heavy equipment near the Canadian border in preparation to move into Quebec after the height of the separatist crisis in 1970.

Both the U.S. and Canadian governments denied the report.

The newspaper in a copy-righted story quoted Leslie J. Bennet, a former chief of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police (RCMP) anti-espionage operations, as saying that U.S. Central Intelligence Agency (CIA) agents had infiltrated Montreal on a large scale during the Front de Liberation Quebecois (FLQ) crisis and tanks and heavy equipment were massed just south of the border.

Bennet said the federal government was informed that should the Quebec government fall or fail to preserve order, the Americans would move into southern Quebec to protect vital U.S. interests in the St. Lawrence Seaway.

Energy Minister Donald Macdonald, who was defense minister at the time of the crisis, denied the story. In Washington, a spokesman for the State Department said the story was "absolutely false."

Kissinger pledges 'peace with justice'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Henry A. Kissinger became the nation's first foreign-born secretary of state Saturday with a pledge to work for a "world-at-peace-with-justice—compassion and humanity."

Kissinger took the oath of office at a colorful White House ceremony attended by President Nixon and about 250 government dignitaries, congressional leaders, Hollywood personalities, family and friends but not Vice President Spiro T. Agnew and William P. Rogers, Kissinger's predecessor at the State Department.

Kissinger, 50, who negotiated the Vietnam cease-fire as Nixon's national security adviser, looked nervous as he entered the gold-draped East Room in a dark blue suit. The guests immediately stood and applauded.

Chief Justice Warren E. Burger, clad in his black robe, administered the oath as Kissinger's mother, Paula, who described herself as "humbly proud," held the King James Bible which her son used for the swearing-in ceremony.

Kissinger, who also will continue to serve as Nixon's chief adviser on national security, took office Friday after winning Senate approval on a 78-7 vote that followed extensive confirmation hearings.

Born in Furth, Germany, Kissinger fled to the United States with his family in 1939 to escape Nazi oppression of Jews and referred to his past Saturday in an emotional, eloquent speech after taking the oath of office.

"It is very significant," he said, "in these early days when we must think of Americans as part of a 'whole world' community, very significant that for the first time in our long history, a naturalized citizen is the secretary of state for the United States."

He said there is no other country in the world where "a man of my origin could be standing here next to the President of the United States."

"At an early age," he said, "he had the opportunity to see what can happen to a society that is based on hatred and strength and distrust" and he promised to remember this experience in the formulation of policy.

Agnew fights back, legally

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Lawyers for Vice President Spiro T. Agnew will move in federal court next week to block the kickback investigation of him by a federal grand jury in Baltimore, it was learned late Saturday.

Spiking rumors Agnew might be on the verge of resigning in return for leniency from federal prosecutors, the Vice President's office earlier in the day announced formation of a "legal defense fund" for him and in late evening, attorney Judith Best confirmed papers would be filed next week seeking to halt the inquiry altogether.

How the legal counterattack will be conducted was not specified, but it appeared Agnew's lawyers will contend a calculated series of malicious leaks about the kickback probe violated his constitutional rights.

"There have been an inordinate number of disclosures that would preclude the right to a fair trial," Best said.

Agnew supporters have claimed the leaks came from the Justice Department and the White House and were aimed at distracting attention from President Nixon's Watergate problems. Justice and the White House have vigorously denied it.

The apparent decision to fight back through the legal system capped a week in which it was widely reported that Agnew was "bargaining" with the Justice Department over the possibility of resigning in return for being permitted to plead guilty to some minor offense in the Maryland political corruption case.

On Thursday Agnew met with Nixon, and according to reports, the possibility of resignation was discussed. The Vice President was said to have left the meeting in a dejected mood.

Agnew's press secretary, Marsh Thompson, said the defense fund was being established to cover all "legal costs" growing from an investigation of the vice president in connection with an alleged scheme of political kickbacks in his home state of Maryland.

Thompson said Agnew intends to wage a court battle if he is indicted by a federal grand jury in Baltimore and that the decision to set up a defense fund was "an important indication of his (Agnew's) attitude."

A congressional source told UPI earlier in the day that attorneys for Agnew and the Justice Department were involved in what he described as "implacable bargaining" based on the assumption that if Agnew resigned, the Justice Department would use any evidence against him only to charge him with a minor offense.

Thompson denied that such negotiations were underway and said establishment of the defense fund "reinforces the impression" reported by many of Agnew's associates that the vice president does not intend to resign.

Rim zone opposed

TWIN FALLS — Angry Snake River Canyon Rim landowners plan to organize opposition to a proposed agricultural zone stretching along the rim.

They have scheduled a public meeting at 8 p.m. Tuesday at the Idaho Power Auditorium to build opposition to the zone.

Their move was in reaction to the Twin Falls County Planning and Zoning Commission's decision Thursday to seek a 300-foot-wide strip along the rim for agricultural use.

Such a zone would restrict residential subdivisions planned by many of the landowners.

Final approval of the proposed zone must be given by the Twin Falls County Commissioners.

Gordon Creaves, a rim property owner and feitor, says the new zone would kill his plans to develop his land.

"We've got a development with half already approved. The other half is laying there."

"What they're going to force us into is losing all this dam value of the property."

"We're going to organize opposition to this," he said. "What they've done is distasteful to all the property owners on the canyon rim."

Another realtor, Richard Messersmith, said the proposed zone would reduce rim property values.

"You are looking at several million dollars worth of property ... and millions of dollars worth of revenue," he said.

"I think that rim should be left to enjoy and view for the people who can live out there."

"There has to be responsible development, planned development."

"They might even stop Evel-Knievel from jumping. He's commercial."

GRAPICVILLE, Tex. (UPI) — Jean French, the pilot of the British-French Concorde SST exhibited during the dedication of the new Dallas-Fort Worth Airport, surveyed the world's largest airfield Saturday and gave his impression:

"Concorde must be pretty cheap around here. Other than that, it seems like any other airport."

Idaho foothold gained by narcotics

BOISE (UPI) — Federal narcotics agents are beginning to get a foothold in Idaho and they expect to be making numerous arrests in the coming year.

A spokesman for the Drug Enforcement Administration (DEA) which set up an office in Boise last May with virtually no publicity, said agents brought their first narcotics case to federal court here this summer.

The spokesman, who asked not to be named, said the two-man office hopes to have as many as 10 cases a month when the drug enforcement program gets going.

"We certainly hope to increase the court load," he said.

The Drug Enforcement Administration, which is a combination of the Bureau of Narcotics and Dangerous Drugs and Customs Agency services, just recently took over the responsibility of stopping and arresting those bringing illegal drugs into the country.

The spokesman said more agents may be added to the Idaho operation in the near future. The office is interested in major drug traffic and if minor possession cases are encountered they are referred to local enforcement officials.

If the DEA starts making arrests and the cases begin going to the federal court it could stop a decrease in criminal cases in the court.

Jerry Clapp, federal court clerk, said criminal cases filed in Boise's U.S. District Court have dropped from 160 in 1969 to 94 during the 1972 fiscal year.

Clapp said a major reason for the decline is a directive issued by the U.S. Justice Department requesting U.S. Attorneys not to prosecute cases involving interstate transportation of stolen motor vehicles.

But he added cases involving repeated offenses or organized car-theft rings are still aggressively pursued by the federal prosecutors.

Howard Elliott killing 87 flies at Twin Falls police station ... Bill Reid and Don Green stopping police car on Filer Avenue to rescue small kitten from middle of the street ... Burglars enter two TF areas

TWIN FALLS — Burglars "pooled" a safe at the Twin Falls Implement Co. offices, 2030 Kimberly Road, sometime Friday night, city police report.

Office reports indicated entry was gained by forcing a door to a storage area of the building and then entering the office area where the safe was open.

Officers said nothing was taken from the safe but a cash register in the office was also opened and about $21.75 and two rolls of pennies taken.

An estimated $630 loss was reported to Twin Falls City Police Saturday by Larry Rambo, 702 Third Ave. W.

He said the entry was apparently made between 6:05 a.m. Friday and 8:20 a.m. Saturday.

Prevention project set

Firemen to visit homes in fire prevention plan

TWIN FALLS — Fire engines and uniformed firemen will be visiting many residential areas during the coming few weeks, not to answer fire alarms, but to prevent them.

City Fire Marshall Fred Higgins said the firemen will be visiting all residential areas beginning Monday in the east portion of town. They will go to the neighborhoods aboard one of the city fire engines and will call, door-to-door, to hand out information about the hazards of home fires and information on fire prevention and nighttime fire escape routes.

Fire Chief Bobby Bopp stressed the firemen will be entering the homes to make fire inspections, but if a resident wishes such an inspection it will be provided on request at that time.

Training class on injured set

TWIN FALLS — The fastest and safest means of removing an injured person from a wrecked automobile or other entrapment will be covered in a two-day training program here Oct. 2 and 3.

Cloey Edwards, Magic Valley Ambulance Co., in charge of the rescue-extrication classes, said the school will be conducted in the civil defense room in the basement of the Twin Falls County Courthouse. Classes begin each day at 8 a.m.

Owen B. Streeper, director of the Emergency Squad Training Institute, Nampa, III., recognized as a leading authority on rescue-extrication in the United States, will direct the training session, Edwards said.

Ambulance drivers, law enforcement and fire department officers are invited to participate in the special program.

Streeper said extrication is a skill of its own and should not be left to amateurs or persons operating wreckers at an accident scene.

He said 27 per cent of the traffic accident victims are being injured more seriously in the handling from misguided rescue efforts than by the accident impact. Streeper said special rescue squads properly trained in extrication must be sent to the accident scenes to avoid this further injury.

He said 40 such training sessions will be held in 30 Idaho communities during the current two-month period.

About 1,400 officers, firemen and ambulance personnel are expected to receive the training. This is part of the program endorsed by Gov. Cecil Andrus for an Emergency Health Service System in Idaho.

TF youth released on charges

TWIN FALLS — John Nielsen, Jr., 16, Twin Falls and Phoenix, Ariz., was released Friday on $450 bond after appearing in magistrate court on charges of possession of a controlled substance, leaving the scene of an accident and obstructing an officer.

He was arrested Thursday night in downtown Kimberly by state police, Kimberly City officers and Twin Falls County officers.

At the time county officers were looking for Nielsen, they also stopped and arrested Jonathan Paul Brown, 19, Twin Falls, and charged him with delivery of a controlled substance. He also was arrested in Kimberly.

He has been released on $2,000 bond.

Two juvenile girls with Brown were taken into custody and released Thursday night to their parents. Petitions have been filed to bring both into juvenile court, Sheriff Paul Corder said.

SHOSHONE — The King's Brass, a gospel group, will perform at the Shoshone Community Methodist Church at 8 p.m. Oct. 21.

The group, composed of teenagers and older singers, forms a 13-piece ensemble.

In the earlier story the group was incorrectly identified as a "rock and gospel" group. The Times-News regrets the error.

UNICEF only voluntary agency

By LORAYNE SMITH
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The United Nation's Children's Fund, known as UNICEF, is the only UN agency operating on an entirely voluntary basis.

Even the contributions given by governments are voluntary and not assessed as they are for other international agencies, according to Paul B. Edwards, Pasadena, Calif., director of the Pacific region for the US Committee for UNICEF, also a volunteer group nationwide.

Edwards was in Twin Falls this past week to address service clubs and provide "spiritual substance" for the local persons working with the UNICEF projects, headed by Mrs. John Breckenridge.

Edwards, who served for eight years as information director for UNICEF and has a lifetime experience as international administrator, says 27 per cent of UNICEF's $85 million budget comes from private sources, mostly in proceeds from the greeting card sale and Trick or Treat project carried out in many American communities at Halloween.

Mrs. Joe Celik and Mrs. Paul Newton will again head the Trick-or-Treat drive in Twin Falls this fall, and Mrs. George Lee and Mrs. T. M. Robertson will continue to handle the Christmas greeting card sales.

Discussing reluctance of some Americans to support the UNICEF work, as well as occasional hostility to its operation, Edwards said people "are entitled to their own opinion, but I wish they'd at least get the facts straight."

He referred to criticism some years ago about "money

UNICEF" was alleged to have sent to Cuba and the amount was rumored to be more than the entire agency budget. The money was actually raised and sent by a private group, he said.

Edwards, a native of Aberdeen, S. D., said he can understand Americans' reluctance to support the many foreign aid programs for "most of us are about 5,000 miles from the scene of any war-devastation" and unless one has been abroad he has to take it on faith.

In Europe, for example, he said there is no problem in getting support for the children's fund — people there have experienced war first-hand. And in the development countries — UNICEF is extremely popular for its work in providing food and health supplies.

The agency is an outgrowth of the now defunct UNRRA (United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Agency) which provided aid during World War II and reconstruction period following.

At first UNICEF concentrated on providing milk and food to keep children alive, but now the emphasis is on long-range assistance such as medicine and health materials.

The director emphasized that the funds are spent only in a matching relationship with participating countries.

One indication of the wisdom of this policy is that the nations receiving UNICEF aid have contributed two-and-one-half times the dollar value of the relief they have received.

Insistence on a matching effort by the recipient countries also saves the client's self respect and weeds out extravagant and foolish projects, Edwards said.

A high-protein food product, known as CSM (corn, soy and milk powder), is now widely used by UNICEF. Edwards said, because of its versatility.

It can be made into gruel, baked, added to soup or used in any way suitable to the local culture.

He said this product was the foodstuff which saved many children in Biafra and is now being flown into West Africa where droughts have resulted in major famine. Recent rains have created transportation problems in UNICEF's air-dropping. The CSM which is in powder form.

The receiving country has to provide for distribution and assimilation costs, and UNICEF has a record of only 7.8 administration costs because "we spend the money on goods and equipment, not people," Edwards said.

Edwards feels he can take his long years of experience both at the UN headquarters in New York and in 50 to 60 countries to work in his new capacity as regional director for the US Committee for UNICEF.

Nixon Connally: New Team?

courts may do in Agnew's case, and the leading politicians here are now analyzing the political consequences of a Connally nomination while of course denying that they are doing anything of the sort.

The White House says the President has no contingency plan for the replacement of Agnew. The Democrats claim they have not been discussing the problem. Almost everybody defends the principle of presumed innocence. Connally says he is not running for anything and wants only to be the best cattle broker in America. And there is about as much truth in each of these statements as in all the others.

The truth is that Agnew has not only been gravely weakened, but virtually destroyed, by leaks and premature publicity even before the evidence against him could be weighed by the Baltimore grand jury.

At least some of the President's supporters think Agnew's resignation would help the President by avoiding a test on whether the vice president can be tried before impeachment, an awkward constitutional problem in the president's own case. And politically, it would give the president the chance to put Connally in the forefront of presidential politics only a few months after Connally joined the GOP.

From the point of view of the Democrats, however, it is hard to see why, with their majorities in both houses of Congress, they would casually go along with Governor Ford of Kentucky and Chairman Strauss of the Democratic Committee.

For confirming Connally as vice president would increase the chances they would have to run against him in 1976, and this could be the most critical decision of that campaign, for while the big Texan may be one of the worst diplomats around these days, he is probably the best politician and the best public speaker in the whole crowd.

More seriously, from the public's point of view, after almost a decade of wheeler-dealer politics under Presidents Johnson and Nixon, one has to wonder where the public interest lies in giving a big edge to John Connally, who has all Lyndon Johnson's bad qualities, and few of Lyndon's good qualities.

There is no doubt that he is a formidable candidate in a field of aging losers, and has every right to make his run through the primaries and try to take over control of the Republican party and challenge his former Democratic buddies in the general election.

But this is not the same as allowing the President, who still faces grave constitutional questions himself in the courts, to choose a new vice president without the expressed will of the party, and shove him ahead of Governors Rockefeller and Reagan, and the other Republican hopefuls.

This not only seems a little sudden and unfair to many Republicans, who want Agnew to stay on—and other Republicans who prefer Rockefeller or Reagan to Connally, but it is arousing many Democrats to challenge the Ford-Strauss thesis, and insist that if the Congress must vote on a new vice president, it should be an interim appointment-like chief justice Burger, who would not be a presidential candidate in 1976.

Getting the Democrats together on anything these days, however, is a problem if not an impossibility, which is why they've now been out of the White House for two terms. But even so, it is not clear why they should reward the Republicans for their blunders, or help elevate Connally, who might just keep them out for two more terms and perpetuate the politics of power and division in the process.

Investigations

There have been enough official and unofficial investigations in Idaho in the last several months to permit one disturbing conclusion.

The conclusion is that an atmosphere of official tolerance for and acquiescence in illegality exists in Idaho in at least one level of government when it is politically suitable or socially acceptable.

That much is clear from the legislative audit on the Department of Law Enforcement. It said provisions of the state liquor law are not being enforced uniformly throughout the state. In one instance noted, "a totally nude female show with audience participation which appeared to be obscene, as defined in the Idaho Code." That proves no corruption, but does raise questions. The report also said investigators heard of gambling operations and of a sale of alcoholic beverages to minors.

The problem that arises from the report, which Commissioner of Law Enforcement John Bender said was fair, is not only that the law is broken, but that it is enforced without uniformity.

The potential for corruption, official harassment and extortion is greatest when laws are enforced in some places but not in others. It is a buyer's market, one which encourages persons doing illegal business to make the highest bid for the least enforcement.

It is simple common sense that the possibilities for such activities are greatly reduced when there is no enforcement at all, or when the enforcement is at a uniform state level.

None of this is to say, of course, that corruption positively exists. It is to assert, however, that unequal enforcement of laws breeds temptation rather than fostering justice.

The legislative auditors' report was publicly received by the commissioner with the remark that it was fairly done and well summarized. In a remarkable statement, Bender said his department couldn't enforce the laws without a peace officer in every county.

The effect of that statement is to raise anew doubts about his own personal behavior. One man, Stanley Crow, a Boise attorney, journalist and apparent candidate for attorney general, has written a series of articles purporting to show corruption in Idaho.

No one has succeeded in proving any of the very serious charges Crow has made, but Bender's statement in response to the audit raises natural questions to the response he has made to Crow's charges.

"I have no intention of bestowing dignity upon this sort of trash and yellow journalism," Bender has said in response to Crow, "I am a professional law enforcement officer and my duties are to enforce the laws of the state. I have no intention of infringing upon the profession of the news media, whose objective is to sell papers."

His seeming lack of sensitivity for the function of the free press aside, Bender refuses Crow's charges by claiming only that his profession is to enforce laws, something he himself admits in another context he is not doing and not by official specific demand.

It is unfortunate, perhaps, that the atmosphere in the state currently calls for more specific responses to what are very serious charges, but that is the case.

Idaho, like the nation, is breathing in a polluted atmosphere that breeds suspicion and even paranoia. What is needed is leadership and candor, not evasions and admissions that the job is impossible. It is no longer possible to trust elected or appointed officials simply because they are elected or appointed and carry with them the weight of office.

What is more likely, and in fact more accurate, is that the review is taking place because the district has at least one school with a concentration of minority students that far exceeds the district average. Norma Hurst, the district's instructional supervisor, said in an interview several days ago the district assumed that was the reason for the review and he was right.

While the official utterances from the Office of Civil Rights indicate that "it just happened that way," other knowledgeable officials indicate Burley was selected because of its distribution of Chicano students. One source said the district was chosen on the basis of criteria that included:

The size of the district, with six schools the minimum cutoff point;

A minority student population of about 6 to 8 per cent. The Burley district's actual

(c) N.Y. Times News Service
WASHINGTON.—Two leading Democrats are now on record as saying that if Vice President Agnew resigns or is forced to leave, President Nixon should have no trouble in choosing Agnew's successor and getting the Democratic-controlled congress to approve the President's personal choice.

Gov. Wendell Ford of Kentucky, chairman of the Democratic Governors Caucus, has said that "the congress, of course, should scrutinize the selection, but on balance, the president should have the choice."

Democratic national chairman Robert Strauss agreed, saying: "I believe the people would see this as the President's responsibility."

If this is true, and it may very well be, we may be at the beginning of a process in which former governor John Connally of Texas could replace Agnew as Vice President and emerge as the leading candidate for the Republican Presidential nomination, with a good chance of beating the divided Democrats in 1976.

From the president's point of view, the replacement of Agnew by Connally would be cynical but logical. He admires Connally for his brassy confidence, good looks, political cunning, and emotional eloquence. Both were poor boys who made good, but Connally has the courage of Nixon's convictions, shares Nixon's conservative philosophy and love of power, and is more comfortable than Nixon in the world of business and politics.

All this has convinced men close to the president, and other Republican leaders such as Gov. Nelson Rockefeller of New York that Connally will be the president's choice if Agnew steps aside. And while the vice president may not choose to accommodate the President by doing so, the fact is that nobody knows what the

Cassia County school review

BURLEY — So far at least, the Burley School District is saying more about its forthcoming review by the federal Office of Civil Rights than is the federal office.

The woman who heads the Office's Northwest Region, Mrs. Marilaine Kiner, would have the public believe that "it just happened that out of all the school districts in the northwest" Burley was chosen for the two-week study by a three-person monitoring team.

That is lot of happening, especially when you consider that the four states in the Northwest encompass Alaskan areas with heavy Indian and Eskimo populations, Portland and the Seattle urban centers and other areas of Idaho that have relatively large Indian and Chicano populations.

What is more likely, and in fact more accurate, is that the review is taking place because the district has at least one school with a concentration of minority students that far exceeds the district average. Norma Hurst, the district's instructional supervisor, said in an interview several days ago the district assumed that was the reason for the review and he was right.

White the official utterances from the Office of Civil Rights indicate that "it just happened that way," other knowledgeable officials indicate Burley was selected because of its distribution of Chicano students. One source said the district was chosen on the basis of criteria that included:

The size of the district, with six schools the minimum cutoff point;

A minority student population of about 6 to 8 per cent. The Burley district's actual percentage is slightly higher than 8 per cent, however.

The presence of a racially identifiable school." In Burley's case, there are two such schools. They include the Miller Elementary School, with a student population of 434 students and 92 Spanish-surnamed students, and Overland Elementary School with 125 Spanish-surnamed students of a population of 221.

By comparison, according to the same year-old set of school district figures, Dworshak Elementary School, the newest in the city has 12 Chicano students out of 627 children. The Southwest Elementary School has 16 Chicanos out of 332.

These figures also indicate that about 400 of the Dworshak students are being bused to school, an indication to at least one federal official that the district has "means available to it" to spread the minority population somewhat more evenly among the schools in question. Privately, one school district official is reported to be saying he would not be surprised if the review team determines busing may be an answer to some of the problems.

No one in the Civil Rights Office, either publicly or privately, will admit to what they call formal complaints registered by Burley area persons in connection with any problems of minority students. Mrs. Kiner agrees there have been "some allegations of Spanish speaking children having language problems," but everyone involved agrees the decision to monitor the district for civil rights practices was made independent of any such charges.

But the language of Mrs. Kiner's statement is an odd consideration in itself. "Allegations" is a pretty strong word for someone to be using when there have been no formal charges, and it appears therefore that she is aware of the strenuous complaints occasionally made that students have been disciplined when they speak Spanish on the playgrounds.

But all of this is outside the official realm thus far, and Hurst's comment in the same interview that "we have nothing to hide" is the best possible kind of position for the district to be taking. It implies a genuine willingness rather than a reluctance to adhere to the provisions of the Civil Rights Acts of 1964 and 1972 which the review team is interested in, and a concurrent willingness to cooperate with the review team both in supplying documents it has requested and on its arrival.

The existence of an ad hoc Freedom of Speech group that apparently has grown up in the district this year is another important development in what thus far shapes up as being a thorough and candid look at the district by all parties concerned.

Interposed between the district and the community group is Saul Saldana. Saldana was elected to the school board on a write-in ballot earlier this year, the first Chicano elected to anything in memory in that part of the state. His candidacy—the bitter remarks made by others following his success and the subsequent taking of the seat is one of the most remarkable political stories of the year in Idaho; apart from it's long-range social significance.

Saldana should make sure that cooperation is genuine with the review team, if there ever was any question.

The report of the Federal team, expected to be out by the end of the year, is also by law a public document, according to one person in the Seattle office, and that may be the best news of all.

A generation of heat

WASHINGTON — It is wrong to think that President Nixon is political future rests on what evidence is produced by the Watergate hearings or whether the Supreme Court decides he has to give up the White House tapes.

The President's rise or fall in the next six months will depend on whether the United States has a cold winter or not. With predictions for a heating oil shortage, the biggest political issue will be the weather.

Let us suppose that for some reason the elements have been unkind to us and the United States has a very cold winter. The Antrous family is huddled in the living room, freezing to death. Mr. Antrous has thrown all the furniture into the fireplace and is about to dump the television set in the flames when President Nixon, speaking from the winter White House in Key Biscayne, comes on the air.

"My fellow Americans,

"I wish to speak tonight on a subject that is close to many of your hearts."

"I am sure you are asking why is the United States, the greatest power in the world, without heat? Why are the American people, who have the highest standard of living in the history of mankind, cold?"

"If you recall, in my second State of the Union Message I asked Congress for a mild winter. I linked us to pass legislation that would make it unlawful for the temperature to go below 40 degrees. I demanded that the front that gave me the authority to move in on any cold front that could cause chaos in this country.

"It is typical of Congress that they ignored my request. Instead of passing a law to guarantee a mild winter, they passed a bill that would have cost the American taxpayer one billion dollars in fuel costs. When I vetoed this bill in October, I told you that I would never sign anything that would add to the inflationary spiral in this country. At that time I said, and I still believe it, a vast majority of Americans feel as I do, that it's better to shiver than pay higher taxes. Your response was overwhelming in my favor.

"Now I know you're asking, 'Why are we having a cold winter?' The responsibility lies not only with Congress but with a press and TV media that for the past four months have been devoting endless space and time to weather reports that show the United States is a cold nation. Well, I can tell you tonight, my fellow Americans, you have been given a distorted picture of this country. There are great parts of the United States that aren't cold. Florida isn't cold; Texas isn't cold; Southern California isn't cold. But does the press write about these places? Do the network news programs show the sun-shining-over-Arizona-and-New-Mexico? All we ever see or read about is New England and Minnesota."

"The truth is, since I took office in 1968 more people have been warm than at any time in our history. But at the same time I am aware that there are some people in this country who are cold, a few of them through no fault of their own."

"We are going to help these people if they need help. But we're not going to give a blank check to those able-bodied people who are capable of finding ways of keeping warm without government assistance."

"My fellow Americans, I'd like to end on a personal note. I received a letter the other day from a 7-year-old girl and she wrote, 'Mr. President, every night when I say my prayers I ask God to bless you for bringing us a generation of heat.'"

IN THE BALANCE

WILLIAM SAFIRE

On charity

(c) 1973 New York Times News Service

WASHINGTON — Arthur Goldberg, the former everything, used to tell the story of the rescue party that approached some trapped mountaineers in a snowy ravine, yelling to them: "It's the Red Cross!" to which the desperate men yelled back: "We gave it at the office!"

The Ervin committee's look into political fund-raising scheduled for the coming month, which could lead to specific legislative reforms, opens up a related subject that is rarely discussed: the element of coercion in much of today's fund-raising for charity.

Gifts by corporations to political parties are against the law; similar gifts by corporations to organized charities are within, and even encouraged by the law. This is what happens:

Charity X approaches the public relations man for a large company and says: "Let's make a philanthropist and a civic demigod out of that old skinflint you have for a chairman of the board. We'll give a dinner in his honor."

Chairman tightwad coughs up a few thousand dollars to the fund for free computer access for precocious children, which makes him a "founder," and then hands over what the charity really wants: the corporation's list of suppliers.

Soon after, any company that sells raw materials or any kind of service to tightwad industries gets a letter from the dinner chairman, known to be a crony of their important customer's top man, inviting its executives to come and do homage to this lifelong philanthropist.

The charity-wise suppliers — the ad agencies, unions, architects of the corporate headquarters — make no immediate commitments, but wait for the next step: the telephone call from the professional fund-raiser "on behalf" of chairman tightwad, telling them how many tables they are expected to buy.

In case of corporate cousins do not get the word, the presidents of those companies find themselves appointed "vice chairman of the dinner committee" and invited to a cocktail party at which old tightwad in person watches with beady eye as they pledge to pass the pressure on to their subcontractors. Thus, a little vigorish is added to price, quality and service as the criteria for doing business.

At the dinner in the grand ballroom, where the entertainer in the hotel's nightclub makes a "free" appearance (that's the hotel's kickback for the dinner business) some upright people extol tightwad's career while his suppliers and industry associates sit grim-faced on the dais and junior executives fill up the tables and listen to the speeches.

And a substantial amount of money goes to "charity." The donations had nothing to do with the spirit of charity; they were coerced, given at the direction of corporate officials to protect business currently done or to curry favor with a good prospect, or given by competing corporations who have the right to demand an equal "contribution" when their chairman need ego massages.

Business is business; one might say — after all, isn't the money for a worthy cause? If we did not permit this little element of self-aggrandizement through corporate chisels, would not innocents suffer and diseases go uncured?

Perhaps. But — consider who is doing the contributing. Not tightwad industries and its suppliers and banks and dependents. Corporate contributions are deductible up to 5 percent of taxable income, which means that one-half of that "contribution" out of corporate profits would have gone to the US Treasury — and deductible corporate charity currently adds up to more than a billion dollars a year.

The other half of the corporate contribution is ordinarily tacked on to the price the suppliers charge tightwad industries, which in turn passes on to the consumers. (If this is not done, then the money has been taken out of the profits and dividends of millions of stockholders.) Old tightwad and his duds guests are not especially out of pocket.

Hold on, now — what harm is really being done? Even if the money "contributed" comes from taxpayers and consumers and stockholders, isn't it better that the money be channeled through privately run charities rather than through the government bureaucracy? Doesn't this guarantee diversity?

Answer: Private charities are, and have been enormously important to the American spirit and are often more innovative than government. That is why some tax deductions would continue to be permitted on personal contributions by individuals.

But charities should be truly privately supported, not publicly supported, which means we should make charitable contributions as unlawful as corporate political contributions.

And let's cut the coercion out of charity. Creative fund-raisers should be able to come up with the most heartrending appeals, or rational and sensible motivations, to get people to give — which they will do only if they are denied the corporate or union power to twist arms.

The spirit of generosity dies when the practice of corporate extortion is tolerated. We can discover more faith in ourselves and hope for our fellow man if we shake off the hypocrisy in our daily lives — and among the greatest of these is much of what goes on under the name of "charity."

Gooding faces tuition problems

By PEGGY GHU

Times-News writer

GOODING — A Bliss father is pondering giving up his parental rights so his children can attend Gooding schools tuition-free.

Jim Faulkner told Gooding School Board members one night last week he would consider appointing a legal guardian if necessary.

According to state law a child may attend school tuition free if he is in the custody of a legal guardian who is a resident of that district.

A new uniform private code now states that all parent rights must be terminated if a legal guardian is appointed.

The Jim Faulkner situation is unusual and complex, and it points out some serious deficiencies and inequities in the present system.

The Faulkners own land and pay taxes in both the Bliss and Gooding districts.

The Faulkners' payment of tuition is not at issue. There are numerous instances throughout the state of parents who pay taxes in more than one district without the prerogative of deciding which school their children will attend.

In his plea to the school board to overlook the residency law, Faulkner claimed that in Glenns Ferry tuition students are billed and not required to pay. He maintains this is the practice throughout the state.

Faulkner also charged that a Department of Education official acknowledged to him that the department recognizes this as a common practice. The official declined to put it in writing, however, Faulkner said.

At the school board meeting Gooding school Superintendent James Museau informed Faulkner that the board of trustees made an official request two months ago for a clarification by the attorney general's office and the department of education, but have received no word. The board expressed the opinion that this was avoiding the issue.

Faulkner requested that the school board interpret his situation on their own and test it. The board's reply was that any taxpayer in the Gooding School District could sue the board for not issuing a bill for tuition and collecting it, board chairman Clark Seaman pointed out.

Furthermore, the board expressed the fear that they could not admit Faulkner's children tuition free without admitting any other student also tuition free if their parents pay taxes in the district. There is one other family in Gooding County in the same situation as the Faulkner family.

If there are inequities between the school districts the problem becomes serious for every parent regardless of whether he owns land in the district. Faulkner claims the Bliss school meets "bare qualifications" and that subjects which should be taught are not offered. A brilliant kid might get by in a school like Bliss, but an average kid has a hard time making it, he said.

In apparent agreement with the board Richard Graves, trustee, said: "I sympathize with anyone who has to send their kids to the Bliss School because of this limited schedule."

By paying $10 per month Faulkner's high school children have 15 more courses to choose from at Gooding High School than they would have if they attended school in Bliss.

There have been attempts by some Bliss school patrons to consolidate with the Gooding school district which is 12 miles away, but these have been defeated over the years. Some hope the State Board of Education will force the consolidation.

But with consolidation currently unlikely, those wishing to send their children to school in Gooding have the choice of paying out-of-district tuition or appointing guardians in Gooding for their children. Because the Faulkners are able to pay the $150 tuition per month to the Gooding School District, they may not go to the extreme of giving up their parental rights. But other families with as much concern for the quality of their children's education may see no other choice.

Amendment

Editor, Times-News:

Soon Twin Falls County will have a new comprehensive zoning plan. It is unlikely that this plan will adequately protect the agricultural base of our community. Amendment by the county commissioners is consistent with the protection of the public at large, the neighboring properties, and the future residents of the project.

PUDs may be superimposed on zones anywhere in the county. Unfortunately, Ordinance 23 as now written provides no control of density or total open space. Are not PUDs just as much a threat to agricultural land as subdivisions?

Unless the proposed zoning plan is intended to better control PUDs, the original purpose of the plan will be defeated. Agricultural land may not be preserved.

A public hearing on the proposed zoning plan will be held October 2. This will be the last chance to voice an opinion before final adoption by the county commissioners.

Comment

Editor, Times-News:

When the public hearing on the new Twin Falls County zoning ordinance was held Sept. 10 at CSI, everyone was very pleased by the presence of many Twin Falls High School students. These young people not only demonstrated an interest in the future of our area by their attendance, but many expressed this interest verbally.

Poor taste

Editor, Times-News:

The recent articles and photographs regarding "indigent burials," written by Mr. George Wiley, in our opinion are very distasteful. Regardless of anyone's station in life, whether rich or poor, surely respect should be shown to their departed loved ones.

Referring to a plot in a cemetery as Boot Hill, etc., seems very macabre.

The Agnew Mystery

WASHINGTON — Headline speculation about Vice President Spiro T. Agnew's imminent resignation has now all but persuaded Agnew to prepare a "flat denial," to be issued not at a press conference but through some unidentified forum that would dramatically reach the nation.

The timing is uncertain, but Agnew's mood is not. He has no present intention of resigning, which his friends claim would amount to a confession of guilt. But Agnew refused repeated requests for prepublication comment on the currently written speculative story by the Washington Post's highly reliable David Broder, who attributed the prediction to a senior Republican figure strongly in Agnew's corner.

Agnew's refusal to deny the speculation was in keeping with his reluctance to make official denial to the swarm of spurious stories about his intentions amid the worst political storm ever to strike a Vice President.

The "senior Republican figure," according to Agnew's friends, is not Sen. Barry Goldwater, as has been widely rumored, but instead some other Agnew confidant who has seen Agnew for long and intimate discussions in the past few weeks. Out of these discussions emerged the possible rationale for an Agnew resignation.

As has been widely reported, Atty. Gen. Elliot Richardson, may send the allegations and evidence against Agnew to the House of Representatives rather than seek a criminal indictment. Agnew worries deeply about two possible results if that happens.

First, the House might fail to come to grips with his impeachment, neither voting for impeachment (in effect, an indictment leading to an actual trial in the Senate) nor voting to exonerate Agnew. Should that happen, Agnew would never rid himself of the cloud of guilt.

Second, if the House did come to grips with his impeachment, the process might unleash such vicious political struggle that the country, already weakened by the Watergate scandals, could be further polarized to cause serious and permanent damage.

It was lengthy conversation along these lines with the "senior Republican figure" which led to the reports that Agnew was on the verge of quitting, his friends believe. By last Friday, in fact, rumors that Agnew had indeed decided to resign were flying wildly in Washington.

As one example of the wild atmosphere Friday, the Justice Department was informed by a wire-service reporter that Newsweek had decided to change its cover at the last minute and replace the late President Allende of Chile with Agnew. Did that mean Agnew was about to quit? The Justice Department declined comment. Newsweek indeed considered a change in its cover but in the end decided against it.

One reason for Friday's seething rumors was a subtle change in phrasology at the Justice Department to answer questions about the conspiracy charges against the Vice President.

Until last Thursday, the department had invariably answered questions by saying "no declaration" had been made on whether to send the Agnew case to the grand jury (for routine U.S. prosecution), or to the House for non-routine impeachment proceedings. On Thursday, "no decision" became "no comment" — indicating that Richardson was on the verge of momentous decisions involving Agnew.

In fact, it is still unknown whether Agnew can be tried before a federal court while sitting as Vice President, or whether he must first be removed from office by impeachment.

By Saturday, those rumors had convinced some high administration officials not only that Agnew would quit but that he would be replaced by Richardson. Moreover, they coincided with Agnew's decision to talk out his deepest worries with his political allies, one of whom leaked the Vice President's concern.

However, Agnew's friends downgrade his private expressions of possible resignation by comparing them to President Nixon's similar feelings, revealed to his family two months ago and reported in the press by his daughter, Julie Eisenhower. In each case, they say, the hard decision actually to resign was not approached.

Whatever Richardson may decide, and however the charges against him may turn out, Agnew insists to his friends that he genuinely believed himself to be innocent. Thus, to quit and leave himself open to charges that his resignation was a self-confession of guilt, is viewed by the Vice President and his friends as the worst possible course — no matter what he confided to his allies in a moment of anguish.

Kissinger

(c) New York Times Service

WASHINGTON — Henry Kissinger is probably better qualified than any other man to become American Secretary of State and, despite the lamentable political atmosphere in this country, one is justified in hoping this promise will be borne out by success.

Of course Senator Fulbright was right when he remarked during confirmation hearings that Kissinger had in effect already been secretary of state four years. He certainly ran Nixon's foreign policy and played a crisp, intelligent role and more dynamic diplomatic role than the placid William Rogers.

Even so, it is one thing to be the top White House adviser and another thing to hold the number one cabinet position. It is even more impressive when the same man apes John Foster Dulles by holding both jobs at the same time.

Until Dulles actually moved into state he was never certain he wanted to be secretary because that minister was "too tied up with political maneuvering and party obligations" and it might be "much more fun" to play the part of Harry Hopkins (under Roosevelt) or Colonel House (under Wilson).

He solved that quandary by being two things at once: flying about the world as a "kind of proto-Kissinger and carrying in his briefcase the decision-making functions of his department and its appurtenances except for the great secret.

There isn't any problem about quality of functions for the newly appointed secretary since the President has specifically stated that he will not relinquish his special advisory functions at the White House.

Kissinger brings twin advantages to his new office: he knows more about the theory and practice of foreign policy than any predecessor save perhaps Dulles; and he also happens to be the first secretary of state in a quarter of a century who wasn't trained as a lawyer.

The last non-legal and running state was that of General George C. Marshall. Since his tenure, Dean Acheson and Dulles (two distinguished attorneys) and Christian Herter and Dean Rusk (both of whom had law degrees) served as secretary, as well as the lawyer Rogers.

In his remarkable treatise (De La Maniere De Negocier Avec les Souverains) Francois Du Callois, previous secretary of King Louis XIV, wrote in 1713: "In general, the training of a lawyer breeds habits and dispositions of mind which are not favorable to the practice of diplomacy."

Callieres' implication was that an attorney might be more interested in winning a case than developing a long-range program; that he might be more facile than wise; that he could be more concerned with exploiting flaws in an opponent's argument than in attaining reasonable and enduring solutions; and that he is professionally accustomed to adroitly changing positions.

Surely all of these habits could be attributed to the flamboyant Dulles who was both a brilliant negotiator and a flexible acrobat even though one doesn't need to stress Callieres' point artificially by analyzing the careers of other legal benvengers in state.

Not even Kissinger's most biased critics contend he is ignorant in the complex field of foreign affairs and he has even managed under difficult circumstances to maintain tactful personal relationships with legislators now circumstantially to maintain tactful personal relationships with legislators now angry with the executive. Moreover, there is reason for the state department and the career foreign service to take heart from the fact they will now be headed by a tough, intelligent man.

Peron landslide expected

Buenos Aires (UPI) — Juan D. Peron, who ruled Argentina with an iron fist until he was overthrown in a military coup 18 years ago, was the odds-on favorite Saturday to recapture power through the ballot box in Sunday's presidential election.

About 14 million voters are overwhelmingly expected to return Peron to the presidency from which he was ousted in 1955. None of the three candidates running against the 77-year-old leader is expected to stop his triumphant return after a long exile.

Argentine voters gave Peron's Justicialist Liberation

Front a majority in congress, control of all the province governments and the presidency through Peron's proxy Hector Campora.

Campora, who described himself as a "humble soldier" of Peron, resigned the presidency July 13 to allow new elections with Peron as a candidate.

Peron's third wife, Isabel, 40, became his vice presidential running mate in a maneuver to keep the disparate elements of his party united around a "Peron-Peron" ticket.

Peron, who has had a heart condition, said Friday he was not selected his successor in the event of his death. "I am living on borrowed time. When I no longer exist, it will be the movement that decides who will succeed me."

The movement is divided by mortal rivals among the leftist youth and the orthodox union leaders. Peron's wife, a former cabaret dancer, is not expected to have sufficient power to turn the country.

Peron's armchair campaign has emphasized national unity, and in his final speech Friday, he said he would "ask all the Argentine political leaders for active cooperation" if he wins.

The other candidates are Ricardo Balbin, of the Radical Civil Union; Francisco Mar-rique, leading a right-wing nationalist coalition; and Juan Carlos Corral, of the Socialist workers Party, a Trotskyite group.

If Peron surprised all the political predictions by winning less than 50 per cent of the vote, Argentine law calls for a run-off election.

Voting is obligatory in Argentina with fines of up to $50 for citizens who do not present a legal excuse for their absence from the polls.

To maintain order at the polls, 171,000 men of the armed forces and police have been mobilized throughout the nation.

Firing squad kills two in Chile; junta to prepare new constitution

SANTIAGO (UPI) — Two men were executed by a firing squad in Antofagasta Saturday in a plot to assassinate military officers. In Santiago, a member of the ruling junta indicated political parties would not be allowed to participate in formulation of a new constitution.

"The country is so politicized now," said Gen. Gustavo Leigh, the air force commander-in-chief, "that if we let all sectors participate it would be come a Tower of Babel."

Leigh told a news conference that the four-man junta has asked law professors to help prepare the new constitution and that although Marxist parties are outlawed now,

"after the current confrontation is over everyone will be allowed to participate in the political process."

Leigh's remarks came hours after the military government revealed that two men had been executed by firing squad after an on-the-spot court martial and said that Catholic priests would be allowed to collect weapons in a brief amnesty for persons who turn in their arms before Monday.

Police Saturday found three unidentified bodies of persons repeatedly shot and mutilated by bullet wounds in a suburb of Santiago.

In Rancagua, south of Santiago, soldiers and national police said they rounded up and arrested 31 "political organizers" of the overthrow of the Socialist-led regime of the late President Salvador Allende. Spokesmen said Prof. Luis Almonacid, 42, was killed in a shootout there when he resisted a raid on his house.

Operating under martial law, a military court in Antofagasta, 500 miles north of Santiago, condemned to the firing squad Dr. Jorge Antonio Cerga Albaracin and Carlos Desiderio Quiroga Rojas, who the army said had made more than 2,000 bombs to assassinate officers and their families.

The two men were executed at dawn.

Gen. Oscar Bonilla, interior minister in the new ruling military junta, said "upwards of 5,000 persons" had been arrested since the Sept. 11 coup that resulted in the death of Allende and overthrow of his government.

Bonilla said the military was in firm control of the nation but that "suicide squads" of Allende supporters were still active.

In Santiago, heavy machine gun fire was heard during the dawn hours in the downtown area. The nightly 8 p.m. to 6 a.m. curfew was still in effect with troops patrolling the streets.

Catholic priests have been authorized to receive weapons before a deadline of Sept. 28 for all private citizens to register or turn over their weapons to authorities, Bonilla said.

Bonilla said that "more than 200" officials of the Allende government were being held outside of the capital. He did not identify them or the place where they are imprisoned.

Another 3,000 persons arrested after the coup were still in the 70,000-seat national soccer stadium in Santiago, Bonilla said.

Nixon defends military budget

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon appealed anew Saturday for Senate approval of the full military budget he proposed, claiming it was needed to avoid jeopardizing "all of our efforts to secure a more peaceful and prosperous world."

The President made the plea in letters to leaders of both parties in the Senate, meeting in an unusual Saturday session voted to reject legislation designed to reduce headquarters staffs of U.S. military services around the world.

In yet a third development, Senate leaders and some proponents of reductions in the $21.9 billion military procurement bill were said to have arranged to hold two secret meetings next week to consider related classified information, some of it regarding the controversial Trident submarine program.

Nixon, in the letters dated Thursday and made public Saturday by the White House, said he was "disturbed" by proposals to cut U.S. forces in Europe, reduce military aid to South Vietnam and Laos, trim new weapons programs and reduce military manpower.

"My judgment is that in today's world this nation cannot afford less defense," he said. "All of our efforts to secure a more peaceful and prosperous world will be endangered if we unilaterally erode our defense posture."

Nixon said military strength made it possible to improve relations with China and Russia and would be a necessity for important negotiations coming up on mutual troop reductions in Europe and limitation of strategic arms.

The President's letters were sent to Senate Republican Leader Hugh Scott of Pennsylvania, Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield of Montana, and Sen. John C. Stennis, D-Miss., chairman of the Armed Services Committee.

Arrangements for next week's meetings on the bill were reported by the office of Sen. Thomas J. McIntyre, D-N.H., saying the sessions would be attended by McIntyre, Scott, Mansfield, Stennis, and Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., among others.

Stanek tots get milk

DENVER (UPI) — For the first time since their birth all five surviving Stanek septuplets drank milk Saturday and John, the oldest, became the recipient of the infants' first diaper.

Doctors said three of the babies had won their fight against a lung disease that killed their tiny sister.

"We're encouraged about all five infants," said pediatrician Dr. James Strain. "Their conditions are continuing to improve and they're steadily gaining strength. Three of them seem to have shaken the disease that killed Julia."

John, the first of the infants born last Sunday night seven weeks premature, received the first diaper, and his mother, Mrs. Eugene Stanek, 34, held Jeffrey for the first time.

Power fuss hits Demos

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Democratic National Chairman Robert S. Strauss agreed Saturday to get a second legal opinion on whether the party's Delegate Selection Commission has rulemaking power or is just another debating society.

Strauss made an unannounced appearance before the Commission after its members began squabbling Friday over an opinion voted this week that the Democratic National Committee had to approve any action taken by the delegate group.

Strauss pleaded for unity and said he would ask former Supreme Court Justice Arthur Goldberg for his legal opinion on the powers of the commission at the request of its chairwoman, Barbara Mikulski, a member of the Baltimore city council.

The first opinion was written by Newton Minow, the former chairman of the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) who now is practicing law in Chicago. Minow's conclusions were taken by supporters of the 1972 Democratic reforms to be a signal that party traditionalists were determined to repeal delegate selection rules that gave women, minorities and youths their largest convention representation at Miami Beach last year.

Strauss would not say whether he considered the Minow opinion binding on the Mikulski Commission, nor what he would do if Goldberg disagreed with Minow. A number of commission members and observers predicted that the matter would have to go to court.

The disagreement over the commission's powers diverted attention only slightly from the substance of the delegate selection controversy. While there is a definite split on the commission between a "New Politics" group that generally supported Sen. George S. McGovern last year and party members who were for others before the Miami Beach convention, there was overwhelming agreement that the party could not impose quotas on delegate selection in 1976.

Martha 'tortured'

NEW YORK (UPI) — Martha Mitchell, in her first television interview since she left Washington, denies that she is suffering from a mental condition and complains of "the torture I'm being put through."

In the interview with NBC, taped Friday for broadcast Sunday, an obviously distraught Mrs. Mitchell said she wanted to counter rumors that she is in a mental institution.

She said she has received letters from persons who "say they're sorry I'm in the hospital, to please take care of myself and they're going to send me this and send me that and where can they contact me?"

"So I decided it was time for me to tell the American public that I am sitting in my apartment... I'm perfectly capable of doing anything I want to do and there's absolutely nothing wrong with me except I'm mentally tortured—from the torture I'm being put through," she said.

MOTORISTS jam a service station in Oakland, Calif., shortly before midnight Thursday after northern California retail gasoline dealers agreed informally to close from Friday to Tuesday afternoon in protest of Phase IV price controls. (UPI)

Irate gas sellers call 'war council'

By United Press International
A nationwide shutdown of service stations will be one of the major topics of discussion Sunday as a "war council" called for gasoline dealers from 40 states, a spokesman said Saturday.

Robert Jacobs, a leading official of the Illinois and Indiana Gasoline Dealers Association, said "other forms of activity" also will be discussed at the noon meeting scheduled at a hotel at Chicago's O'Hare International Airport but he declined to describe them.

The Sunday meeting was the latest in a series of protests by gasoline dealers across the country over the Phase IV guidelines. The dealers object to the freeze on retail prices while wholesale prices are allowed to rise.

There already have been numbered of localized shutdowns of service stations but so far no nationwide action.

Independent service station dealers in the Baltimore and Washington metropolitan areas Saturday reaffirmed their intentions to close Monday to protest Phase IV.

A spokesman for the Maryland Independent Dealer's Association predicted most of the agency's 400 members would observe the freeze on retail prices while wholesale prices are allowed to rise.

There already have been numbered of localized organizers estimated that 60 per cent of the area's 2,000 independent dealers would close, but individual station managers indicated they would wait and see what neighboring competitors would do before deciding.

The California State Automobile Association reported that 90 per cent of the stations there were closed.

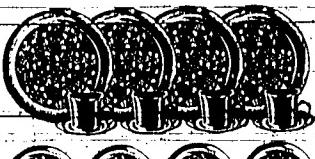

Nixon vetoes disaster aid hike

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon vetoed legislation Saturday to increase the Small Business Administration's capacity to provide disaster aid. He said it would have resulted in "unnecessary expense" and "a backward march" for federal relief programs.

of Mr. and Mrs. David Swearingen,
(Idaho Power & Publications editor)

Like little Dawn Swearingen, the new homemakers of the 1980s and 1990s already have been born. On a day for which Idaho Power Company must be preparing itself, they will be asking for electricity to heat their homes, cook their food, possibly for transportation, and for dozens of other purposes.

Constantly increasing electric loads are a fact of life as inevitable as the babies of today becoming the homemakers of tomorrow. It's as inevitable as the growth of businesses to provide their needs and give them employment, and as the ever-growing tide of newcomers to our area.

Equally inevitable is the necessity of building new power plant facilities. Since these cost millions of dollars, electric rates must be high enough to cover normal costs, including a fair return to present shareholders, and to attract new investment capital in the money-market competition of the financial world.

Since it takes about ten years from initial plans to completion of a new power plant, Idaho Power's management team must keep the future constantly in mind, knowing that tomorrow's electric loads already have been born.

Geothermal study bill backed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Eleven of the 13 members of the Senate Interior Committee co-sponsored legislation Saturday to encourage research into the possibility of using the earth's heat as a source of energy.

The bill would authorize the secretary of Interior to guarantee commercial loans used to finance geothermal exploration and development and would strengthen the federal government's own research in geothermal energy.

A study sponsored by the National Science Foundation has estimated U.S. geothermal resources could generate 132,000 megawatts of electricity by 1985, more than a third of the nation's current capacity for producing energy.

Geothermal energy involves generating power from the heat of the earth's core by sinking wells to tap steam or boiling water to turn turbines.

Sen. Alan Bible, D-Nev., chief sponsor of the bill, said the government must join with industry if the country is to benefit from geothermal energy in the next 10 years.

"This nation's geothermal energy resources represent a potentially vast clean energy potential for the generation of electric power in the West," Bible said in a statement. "Evidence of this resource abounds in Arizona, California, Idaho, New Mexico, Nevada, Oregon and elsewhere."

Bible said the administration had impounded money earmarked by Congress for government geothermal exploration. This, he said, Louisiana; Lee McCall, Montana; and Republicans Paul J. Fannin, Arizona; Clifford P. Hansen, Wyoming; Mark O. Hatfield, Oregon; James L. Buckley, New York; James McClure, Idaho, and Dewey Bartles, Oklahoma.

Antique Festival theatre brings drama knowhow to Idaho schools

TWIN FALLS - The Antique Festival Theatre is going to school this fall.

The mobile company, which began in Buhi 10 years ago as an adventure built on the vision of its producer-director, Aldrich Bowler, has begun its second fall repertory tour of Idaho.

The productions are designed for indoor presentation - stage, gymnasium or multi-purpose room and are being given in high schools and junior highs throughout the state. Workshops are offered in conjunction with performances and the actors are in a school for the day and available for informal discussions relative to the field of "show biz," according to Paul Kliss, associate director.

This fall's repertory includes "A Snake River Anthology," compiled by Anna Marie Boles; "The Two Buzzards," and "The Farce of Worthy Master Pierre Padelin."

"The Two Buzzards" was first produced at the Royal Adelphi Theatre, London, in 1653 and was one of the dozens of short farces written by J.M. Morton. His well-known "Box and Cox" was performed by the Antique Festival Theatre in the 1971 summer season.

"The Farce of Worthy Master Pierre Padelin" is considered a good example of realistic farce of the Middle Ages with its sharply drawn characters, unity of action and its clever wit, Kliss said.

The Antique Festival theatre has presented a summer repertory throughout Magic Valley and the state since 1961, but last fall was the first time support was available for a fall tour-to-the-schools.

The summer and fall tours are supported by the Idaho State Commission on the Arts, and this next spring, the first spring repertory tour is slated for grade schools throughout the state, with the support of the Idaho Bicentennial commission.

The fall tour players include Peter Marshall, Muren Lickley, Morris Beers, Robert Haynes, Margo Davis and Patricia (Bitsy) Bidwell. H. Paul Kliss, Twin Falls, directs "The Two Buzzards," which is subtitled "Whitetail at Greenteach"; and Peter Marshall directs the medieval play "The Farce."

"The Snake River Anthology," directed by Ms. Boles, includes historic and related material from writers such as Ezra Pound, Rudis Fisher and A.B. Guthrie as well as Chief Joseph's "Appeal of Justice" and folklore excerpts.

The theatre recruits its company nationwide from the ranks of professionals, postgraduates and undergraduate students whose vocational aims encompass the theatre arts.

English walnuts

English walnuts do grow in TF

TWIN FALLS — Thin shelled English walnuts do not grow in Twin Falls because winters are too severe.

This is a long established fact accepted by nursery and horticultural experts, and it sounds logical except for one thing — it is wrong.

A Twin Falls man, known for his experiments with all types of plants, is now harvesting thin-shelled walnuts; similar to, but not exactly like the English or Carpathian nuts which grow in Washington, Oregon, California and other favorable climates but which seldom survive and never produce nuts in this area.

Olan Genn, former county agent, planted a seedling he obtained from a local nursery 12 years ago. It was one of a dozen such seedlings the firm had on a trial basis. As far as he knows, Genn says, it is the only one to survive.

"Everyone told me it would not live and I was shown a number of walnut trees which had frozen off, sent up new shoots and again been frozen," he said.

Twelve years later, the tree fills about a third of the Genn front yard, provides an attractive shade tree and produces nuts that are tasty and easy to harvest. The green hard cover of the nuts breaks open when they are ripe, allowing the nuts to drop to the ground, perfectly clean and ready for use.

Most nuts of similar type that have grown in this area are bitter in flavor but those at the Genn home are sweet.

This tree mutated in the right direction," Genn said, "and it may be possible through grafting to produce for the first time a marketable new tree which can be grown and produce nuts in the northwestern states."

Genn said the tree was several years old before his grandson, Mark Carlson, spotted the first nut among the dead leaves. After a few years of production he sent a sample of the nuts to Tony Horn, University of Idaho Horticultural specialist.

Horn checked the sample and wrote back, "Ole, you have a superior nut tree and it is yours to name and claim."

Mr. and Mrs. Genn took a number of cuttings from the tree to California earlier this year and were almost denied entrance to the state because officials there were afraid that officials there were afraid that belief such trees could not be coming from Twin Falls, Idaho. There are now 200 or more trees grafted and growing in Modesto, Calif., to be shipped to Twin Falls next spring for sale here to persons wishing to try them.

Another ten trees were grafted last year and are growing in Twin Falls. Western

Nursery on Filer Ave. will serve as the outlet for the new trees.

There may be a whole new agricultural field for Magic Valley in the way of nut production, Genn says.

TWIN FALLS — Mini-reviews for some of the new books recently received by the Twin Falls Public Library have been released by library officials.

"Beneath Another Sun" by Ernst Lothar. The poignant and moving story of a subject people crushed under the tyranny of the "New Order."

"To Fame Unknown" by Clifford L. Alderman. When Esek Warren rode into Biglin, the townspeople stared after him or turned away and sneered, according to their natures, for on his sleeve was stitched the scarlet letter F.

"Reflections of a Fishing Person" by Jonathan C. Sams.

These are fish stories with a thoughtful twist... They deal with fishing as an exercise of the soul-as-well-as-of-the-body.

"Scarlet Sister Mary" by Julie Peterkin. This is the life story of Mary, who at 15 is a "slender, darting, high-spirited girl" married to July, the wildest young buck in the quarters.

"The Distant Laughter" by Bryan Forbes. This novel of a marriage and a love affair carried on in the midst of glamor, cynicism and sordidness of the international movie world is absorbing, urbane, and above all, vividly real.

"Entering Ephesus" by Daphne Abas. Ephesus in 1939 is a phenomenon peculiar to America. This is a superb novel about the depression-Hidden Bishop family.

"Animal Life and Lore" by Osmond Ireland. A superb blend of intriguing facts.

Abby

Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Herb and I just had our third baby; they are 13 months apart. Each time I went to the hospital to have a baby, Herb stayed at his mother's.

The first time, a neighbor drove me. The second time, I called the police station. The third time, I drove myself in our pickup truck. [The one we use for hauling horses.] Herb says he can't stand to be around hospitals. He says the smell makes him sick.

So all the time I'm in the hospital Herb stays at his mother's. Would you believe I gave the janitor at the hospital $5 to drive me and the baby home? I don't have any relatives living anywhere near me.

Herb is a Mama's boy even tho he's ten years older than I am. [T.M. 20.]

big boy

My doctor told me I should quit having babies and force my husband to get some counseling because he never heard of a grown man who acted this way. My doctor asked me what my husband's IQ was. What's an IQ?

NEW MOTHER.

DEAR MOTHER: IQ is "intelligence quotient," which means your doctor wants to know how "old" Herb is mentally. If Herb won't go for "counseling," go alone. If you're going to live with Herb and raise his family, you'll need some help.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 27-year-old married woman who has had a disgusting experience. The man in the next apartment is married, retired and 67. He's started following me around the apartment grounds and swimming pool area, telling me how "pretty" I am, etc. Once he actually forced a slobbering kiss on me!

Abby, this man is 15 years older than my father. He's fat and bald and unattractive-to-boot.

If I were a 67-year-old woman, I'd never dream of trying to have a fling with a guy in his 20's. Sure, I might see some young man and consider him attractive, but I'd take a good look at myself and consider how I must look to HIM, and I'd let it go at that. I'm sure most women think that way.

My question: Why can't men be more realistic? What makes these old goats actually believe that young girls could have a romantic interest in them? I'd really like an answer to this because it's been bugging me.

CURIOS IN CONN.

DEAR CURIOUS: Generalizations are dangerous. I'm sure there are young women who are madly in love with men who are older than their fathers. And young men who truly adore women many years their senior. Your neighbor could be sensible, playing a longshot, or just a dirty old man. "Delusions of adequacy" is not a condition found exclusively in men.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 21-year-old girl with two large problems. My feet! I wear an 11 Triple E shoe. I can feel people actually staring at my feet, and some strangers have even asked me what size shoe I wear.

I'd like to wear pretty shoes, but they don't fit me in my size. Abby, have you ever heard of an operation to make a person's foot smaller? They do so much with plastic surgery these days. I'd sure appreciate a prompt reply.

BIG FEET

DEAR BIG: All the orthopedic surgeons I've consulted about your "problem" agree that the foot can be made narrower by removing the small toe and metatarsal, but they wouldn't consider a foot shortening job for vanity's sake.

If I were you, I'd get down on my hands and knees and thank the good Lord for my pair of healthy "11 Triple E's."

DEAR ABBY: When my husband and I and our children are invited to someone's home for supper, I always ask if they plan to serve the kids the same dinner as they serve the grownups. The reason is that some people will serve steaks for the grownups, and give the kids hamburgers.

I feel that if my children are not going to get what the grownups got I would just as soon feed them a good dinner, and leave them home.

I have been criticized for my attitude, but I happen to believe I am right.

What do you think?

ANONYMOUS

DEAR ANONYMOUS: Most children prefer hamburgers to steak anyway, but regardless, it's poor manners to ask a hostess what she intends to serve.

MV pair says vows

RUPERT: Caroline Thaete and Leland Snyder were married in 6 p.m. Aug. 19 at the Rupert Trinity Lutheran Church, with Rev. L. G. Mietzner officiating.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Thaete, Rupert, and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Snyder, Paul.

Grace Thaete, sister of the bride, was maid of honor. Bernita Thaete, sister of the bride, was bridesmaid.

Warren Snyder, brother of the bridegroom, was best man. Groomsmen were Melvin Snyder, brother of the bridegroom, Ushers were Tom Murphy, Randy Snyder, brother of the bridegroom; and Mark Thaete, brother of the bride.

After a wedding trip to Chella, the couple resides at 801 E. St., Rupert. Snyder is employed by Agri-Science Consulting, Twin Falls, and the bride is a practical nurse at Mindoka Memorial Hospital.

TWIN FALLS — Due to the increase in home canning, there have been some problems. Following are some of the questions I have received and their answers:

Why is open-kettle canning not recommended?

It is not considered safe because of the possible contamination of lids and mouth of the jar with bacteria.

The jars cool without reprocessing and considerable spoilage results. The open-kettle method is recommended only for jams and jellies, relishes and some pickles. Even then, there may be some problems with sealing. Be sure to follow directions.

Is there danger of botulism poisoning in home canned chili sauce, pickle and relishes?

No. This toxin is formed in sealed jars of low-acid foods. The toxin will not form in tomatoes or in pickled products containing vinegar of 4 to 6 per cent acidity. They are safe unless there are other signs of food spoilage.

The jars of dill pickles sealed, then unssealed later.

This may be due to underprocessing. It is recommended that dill pickles be processed in boiling water bath for 10 minutes.

What causes white sediment in bottom of jar of some vegetables?

This could be caused by starch in food, minerals in the water or bacterial spoilage. If caused by either of the first two, the food is all right to eat. If spoiled, the liquid is usually murky and the food soft and should not be used.

My dill pickles have started to ferment. Should I throw them away?

Fermentation is caused by yeasts which have not been destroyed during processing. If pickles begin to ferment, the pickles should be rinsed and packed in clean hot jars, fresh pickling solution should be made and poured boiling hot over pickles and the jars processed in a water-bath canner to prevent further fermentation.

Self-sealing lids fail to seal?

It could be failure to follow instructions, a bit of food forced between jar and lid during processing, or underprocessing. It happens quite often when open-kettle method is used.

What causes food to darken in the top of the jar?

(n) Liquid did not cover food product.

(b) Insufficient processing to destroy enzymes.

(c) The processing method used.

(d) Air bubbles not removed from the jar, or too large head space.

Please mail any questions to Helen Walker, Idaho Power Co., P.O. Box 8, Twin Falls, Idaho 83301.

Eric Murray and Saminy Keleha of Toronto are one of the best pairs in the world. Today's hand shows them playing against one another in a mixed pair event.

Saminy found himself on lead against Eric's seven no-trump contract and opened the king of diamonds just as any expert beginner would.

Eric looked at dummy for a couple of seconds, showed Saminy his hand and asked, "Do I make it or am I down one?"

It took Saminy even less time to reply, "Yes, you make it."

He put his hand back on the board, but East wasn't satisfied and wanted Eric to play it out.

There was nothing to the play. Sammy's lead had marked him with the queen of diamonds. Eric would win the first trick with dummy's ace of diamonds. You don't duck when-in-a-grand-slam.

Then he would cash dummy's ace of spades and proceed to run off all the hearts and clubs. This would leave him with two cards. Sammy would have to come down to two cards also. One would be the queen of diamonds; the other a spade.

The jack of diamonds would be discarded from dummy; Eric would lead a spade, go up with dummy's king, drop East's queen and make-the grand slam.

The play wouldn't work if East held three spades. In that case Sammy would have told Eric he was down one.

Eric Murray and Saminy Keleha of Toronto are one of the best pairs in the world. Today's hand shows them playing against one another in a mixed pair event.

Saminy found himself on lead against Eric's seven no-trump contract and opened the king of diamonds just as any expert beginner would.

Eric looked at dummy for a couple of seconds, showed Saminy his hand and asked,

"Do I make it or am I down one?"

It took Saminy even less time to reply, "Yes, you make it."

He put his hand back on the board, but East wasn't satisfied and wanted Eric to play it out.

There was nothing to the play. Sammy's lead had marked him with the queen of diamonds. Eric would win the first trick with dummy's ace of diamonds. You don't duck when-in-a-grand-slam.

Then he would cash dummy's ace of spades and proceed to run off all the hearts and clubs. This would leave him with two cards. Sammy would have to come down to two cards also. One would be the queen of diamonds; the other a spade.

The play wouldn't work if East held three spades. In that case Sammy would have told Eric he was down one.

Civilian POW to speak Thursday for Kiwanians

TWIN FALLS — Michael D. Benge, a civilian prisoner-of-war for five years in North Vietnam, will speak in Twin Falls Thursday before the Kiwanis Club.

The luncheon meeting will be held at noon in the Turf Club. Benge is being sponsored in action servicemen unaccounted for in southeast Asia. No word has been received from some of these men in eight years.

Because he is a civilian rather than military representative, Benge is able to give an unrestricted report of his treatment and of conditions in POW camps.

Mrs. Ellinore Bodahl, chairman of the Idaho POW and MIA Inc., in Twin Falls to announce the appearance of Benge, said too many people feel that all prisoners of war have been returned and there is no longer a need to continue efforts to return lost and unaccounted servicemen.

"This is not true," she said. "There are still 1,300 missing in action servicemen unaccounted for in southeast Asia. No word has been received from some of these men in eight years."

Mrs. Bodahl is the mother of an MIA, Maj. Jon Bodahl, missing for eight years. He is one of at least six Idaho servicemen still unaccounted for in the Vietnam region, she said.

Benge was a civilian prisoner of war. He was associated with the Agency for Parents will be scheduled for parent-teacher conferences at this meeting. They also are urged to purchase their PTA memberships at the door.

Gem hospital meet at SV

SUN VALLEY — Three of Idaho's Congressional delegates, Gov. Cecil Andrus and a number of leaders in health-care will address the 1973 convention of the Idaho Hospital Association.

The convention is expected to attract about 700 delegates for opening sessions Friday; business sessions and special programs will continue through Oct. 3.

Association officials say the five day convention will cover problems related to physical therapists, nursing aestheticians, directors of education, hospital trustees, food service employees, purchasing directors, personnel directors, nursing service administrators, pharmacists, medical records administrators, hospital auxiliaries and administrative and medical staff secretaries. One of the featured speakers will be Christopher J. Hegarty, president of C. J. Hegarty Co., Tiburon, Calif. He will discuss "New Ideas in Leadership."

A panel on "National Health Insurance and National Health Systems" will feature U.S. Sen. James A. McClure, U.S. Rep. Steven D. Symms and U.S. Rep. Orval Hansen, all Republicans of Idaho.

Gov. Cecil D. Andrus will speak on "Revenues Sharing — Prospects for Health Care in Idaho."

Another speaker during the early part of the convention will be Donald C. Carner, executive vice president, Memorial Hospital Medical Center, Long Beach, Calif. He will discuss hospital employee incentive programs.

Other speakers include Dr. Leo J. Gehrig, vice president, American Hospital Association, Washington, D.C., who will discuss "What's Happening in Washington Hospital and Health Concerns"; Austin Ross, Administrator, Virginia Mason Hospital, Seattle, Wash., "Urban-Rural Exchange Problems"; William Ryan Jr., director, Shared Management Planning and Development Services, Sisters of St. Francis, Colorado Springs, Colo.; "Financial Dilemma and Working with Federal Rules," and John D. Twiname, director, Health Cost of Living Council, Washington, D.C., speaking on "Update on Phase IV."

Power pole goes through cab

Crash hurts 2 men near Hagerman

HAGERMAN — A semi-truck rollover near Hagerman injured two men Friday evening.

Dafro Garner, 23, Caldwell, was driving at a high rate of speed, officers said, and the truck tipped over going around a curve. One power pole was broken off by the overturning truck, Bill Boyer, deputy sheriff, reported.

John Henderson, 22, Caldwell, was a passenger in the truck. Both men were taken to Gooding County Memorial Hospital. Garner was released Saturday and Henderson was transferred to St. Alphonsus Hospital, Boise. He was not critically injured, officers said.

TWIN FALLS — A decision-laden agenda awaits State Board of Education members when they meet for a four-day session at College of Southern Idaho in Twin Falls Oct. 9-12.

President John W. Swarley, of Boise, said the board's planning committee of the whole will meet the first two days and business of the state's four institutions of higher learning will be taken up on the final two days.

Four hours have been set aside for discussion of the controversial position paper defining roles and missions of higher education prepared by Milton Small, executive director for the Office of Higher Education. The document, requested earlier by the board, generated considerable discussion after it was presented this month to the presidents of the state's college and universities.

Other planning committee topics scheduled are tenure statewide scholarship program and continuing education.

A morning-long joint session with institutional presidents will include an enrollment report, budget review, Permanent Building Fund priorities and proposed legislation, Swarley said.

Thelma Swarley, guardian, seeks $200,000 for each of the plaintiffs, Deborah Ann, Teddy Ray and Thomas Lee Rippie. They are the children of Franklin and Patricia A. Rippie who were killed, along with another son, Michael Rippie, and three other persons two years ago.

The complaint states the parents and Michael Rippie, driver, were traveling on 145 in Dubois County when the accident occurred.

Named as defendants in the suit are the State of Idaho, Department of Highways and Peter Kiewit & Sons Co., contractor. The complaint charges the contractor and highway department with negligence in allowing the surface of the highway to be left with a slick oil cover following construction.

This condition, worsened by rain prior to the accident, is listed as the cause of the deaths of the plaintiffs' parents. The complaint also states the department of highways allowed premature opening of the newly completed highway and causing the death of the six persons.

The complaint asks $100,000 for each of the children for the loss of their mother and $100,000 for each for the loss of their father or a total of $10,000 house:

He said this means these companies expect to receive higher returns from stock investment than in producing new plant or equipment.

McCarthy claimed that the average stock has fallen 60 per cent from its historical high several years ago.

He said the recent bear market has been worse than the situation in 1929 when he said average stock values declined 55 per cent.

McCarthy, who spoke later to a group of area brokers and investors at CSI in an address sponsored by Sinclair and Co., was optimistic about a number of economic developments.

He predicted that short term interest rates which have jumped about five per cent this year, would soon decline.

"The market is going to have a gradual and sustained boom for the next three to four years," McCarthy told a press conference Friday.

He said several factors "telegraphed" the future rise. One of these is the decision by "more than 400 companies" listed on the New York Stock Exchange to purchase their own stock.

Companies would resume investment in plant and equipment shortly, providing they are assured that governmental economic controls are to be relaxed.

Once corporate investment resumes, shortages should be eliminated in most segments of industry.

At the same time, McCarthy said he believed food prices would soon fall from their current record high levels. He said record U.S. production of major crops, coupled with good harvests abroad, would serve to reduce food prices.

He predicted that long-term interest rates (as opposed to short term rates) would remain at about the 7% to 8 per cent range.

He said labor wage increases so far this year were "not exorbitantly high," falling in the 6.0-6 per cent range.

But he predicted that wage demands would soon rise to much higher levels if inflation is not brought under control.

He said the lack of public confidence in the stock market had led many investors to move investment out of stocks into other investments.

He blamed this partially on the climate of Watergate and on lack of public confidence in economic controls applied during the past several years.

McCarthy was critical of the press, particularly network television, for the gloomy news report presented to the public. He said a typical newscast will have "seven out of eight" stories of a gloomy nature.

He predicted that the price of gold would fall from its historic highs and the dollar would gain strength.

Western governors open confab today

GLENEDEN BEACH, Ore. (UPI) — Western governors, faced with an energy crisis that could black out much of the Pacific Northwest, Sunday begin their annual conference under pressure to find solutions or face federal intervention.

The concerted effort to find ways of saving electricity now could avert a major shortage later when water stored behind hydroelectric power plants may fall below already frighteningly low levels.

Heavy rains in the coming months would help but there is no such guarantee.

Oregon, Washington, Idaho, and parts of Montana and California are particularly affected by the water shortage.

Washington Gov. Dan Evans, chairman of the National Governors Conference this year, wants to get right down to business as soon as the meeting, is officially opened by Oregon Gov. Tom McCall, Western conference chairman and advocate Ralph Nader.

The big problem confronting the governors is how to coordinate their individual state efforts to conserve and if necessary curtail electricity to avoid a system-wide power failure.

They will have to act quickly.

Earlier this month, incumbents W. P. Whitton and George Macdonald have not yet announced if they will seek re-election.

Although no petitions have been taken at the Heyburn City office, both Bob Hubbard and Earl Rose indicated Friday that they are seeking re-election.

Nellie VaDell Mahoney and M. Tremayne have announced publicly if they will seek re-election to their Albion City Council seats. Both will be up for a vote in November. Petitions have been filed at the Albion City office by two City Council members, Kenneth Hofner and William Pracht. Third councilman whose seat is up for election, Clive Schell, said Friday, he didn't plan seeking re-election "if there are enough people running."

In addition to the mayor's seat in Albion, City Council seats will be up for a vote in November. Incumbent W. B. Whitley said Friday, "I don't know" if he will seek re-election. Anderson, whose seat is also expiring, is unavailable for comment.

In Deobia, councilmen Gale Clark and Clark Vallette indicated they probably would seek re-election but had not yet made up their minds.

Redmon and Freyday, his double, was buried on "business reasons." In addition, he said, he served several terms on the council and one term as mayor and felt it was time "for someone else to have a chance."

Three council seats in Burley will be up for a vote Nov. 6 and so far no petitions have been taken out and none of the three councilmen have decided, at least publicly, if they intend to seek re-election.

Those whose seats are expiring are Jim Baper, Sylvan Burg and Jerry Vegwert, who was appointed earlier this month to replace Rex Stanley. Stanley resigned when his son joined the Burley police force.

In Rupert, two council seats are open to election and only one petition has been taken out. Edwin S. Calmull announced his candidacy.

Prosecutor asks probe

BOISE (UPI) — Ada County

Prosecuting Attorney James E. Risch has requested an investigation by the State Health Department into the children's home in Boise following a report distributed this week.

The state Department of Environmental and Community Service (DECS) is to conduct the investigation following reports of a general lack of discipline.

Two teenage boys were put in juvenile detention Thursday after a disturbance at the home on Warm Springs Ave., after being charged with being beyond control of their guardians. They allegedly broke furniture and refused to cooperate with home officials.

The home is now known as the Warm Springs Center for Children.

Boise police said when they arrived in response to the disturbance, they removed two youths from a closet where they were locked by fellow residents.

— who surrounded the closet and refused to let police through at first, reports said.

The plaintiffs ask $150,000 from Everett Wehutte, Boise, pilot of the plane, and from Trans Pacific Leasing Inc., Oregon, owners of the plane, a Piper Cherokee. In the complaint, the plaintiffs charge the firm with negligence in permitting the pilot to use the aircraft, and charge Schutte with carelessness and negligent operation of the craft.

The plaintiffs state in the complaint the Federal Aviation Agency has revoked the license of the pilot as a result of their investigation of the crash and on the basis of careless and negligent conduct.

The Boise couple charges they were in the aircraft at the invitation of the pilot and in no way had control over his conduct or decisions to fly the plane. Both plaintiffs, the complainant, charges, suffered severe and permanent injuries in the crash.

FILER — An Isabel Fields memorial was planned by Filer Parent Teacher organization members Thursday evening in the Filer elementary school.

Mrs. Fields, who retired last spring after many years of teaching here, was killed during the summer in an automobile accident. The group decided to let Bill Hamps, principal, and elementary teachers what type of memorial to select.

Plans were made for a "dime a dip" ice cream social to be held at 2 p.m. Tuesday in the Filer Elementary School.

Boise couple sues pilot, firm

TWIN FALLS — A Boise couple, injured in a plane crash last April 1, near Rogerson, have sued the pilot and the firm which owned the light plane for $150,000 each.

Thomas B. Anna and his wife, both Boise, were passengers aboard a plane which crashed following a snowstorm and shortly after leaving the Jackpot, Nev. landing strip April 1, 1973. Another passenger, Gerald Duard Hill, was killed in the accident.

Farm parity: Dead or alive?

By BERNARD BRENNER
WASHINGTON (UPI) — The idea of parity as a "goal" for national farm programs is dead, the administration's chief farm economist says.

But is it?

Congress has moved a long stride away from the old farm parity formula in setting price levels for major crops, Capitol Hill legal experts concede. But they say parts of the depression-era farm laws of nearly 40 years ago are still on the books and legally still effective today. They proclaim a basic goal of keeping farm income, if not specific farm prices, at the magic "parity" level.

Parity prices, under law, are calculated by a formula designed to show a "fair" price for individual farm commodities. The formula begins by comparing the price of corn, for example, in 1969-14 with the cost of farm production and living supplies in those years. Then with some adjustments to modernize the price-cost relation, the formula produces a parity price per bushel for corn which theoretically gives that bushel the same "fair" purchasing power it had nearly 70 years ago.

Current calculations show the adjusted base period price for corn was 46 cents a bushel. But because production and living costs have risen sharply over recent decades, the full parity price of a bushel of corn in mid-August this year was $2.36 a bushel.

For many years, all government farm support operations were based on setting support rates at fixed percentages of parity. In a new four-year farm law passed in August, however, target supports rates for gains and losses were set in fixed dollars and cents terms with no direct reference to parity.

This means, according to Don Paarlberg, director of economics for Agriculture Department, that "parity is no longer a goal."

"Friends and foes of parity have allowed the concept to expire in silence," the former out of grief and the latter out of charity," Paarlberg added in a speech Thursday at Brahma Minn.

Paarlberg is one of the foes.

Like many economists, both

Republican and Democratic

he prefers to talk about farm income totals and the beliefs that parity has lost its usefulness as a measure of farm prosperity because of changing technology. In fact, when average farm prices last month moved over 100 per cent for the first time in more than two decades, neither Paarlberg nor Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz took any public notice of it.

Despite Paarlberg's funeral oration on parity, Congressional exports pointed out Friday it still survives in many specific farm program laws as well as in the basic "goal" directives of the 1930's. Federal support rates for commodities like soybeans, milk, peanuts, and rice are still set by law within ranges defined in percentages of parity.

"We did move away from parity in the new 1973 farm law," one legislative specialist said. "I was surprised at how far we went. I always thought it (parity) was like the Bible." To some older farmers,

Wheat prices show strength

DENVER, Colo. — Producer wheat prices showed considerable strength during the week ending Sept. 13, averaging 30 to 35 cents above last week according to an Agricultural Marketing Service report.

The report said trading peaked early in the week as millers and exporters covered their immediate needs.

Most elevator operators indicated a slight acreage increase for the 1974 crop. Farmers in many areas were checking for rain damage and the need for limited replanting. Corn prices showed little change with buyers taking a closer look at the nearness of the new crop before making definite price commitments.

US involvement denied

WASHINGTON — The State Department's top official on Latin American affairs categorically denied today that the United States was responsible in any way — through political or military intervention or through economic pressure — for the military coup in Chile last week.

Assistant Secretary of State Jack B. Kubisch also told a House Foreign Affairs Subcommittee that Washington had no specific foreknowledge of the coup, but acknowledged that officials had been expecting some such move for several months.

Denials had been issued repeatedly by government press officials over the last week, but Kubisch's statement at a hearing on the Chile coup marked the first time that responsible government officials have made these points publicly.

Touching on a variety of questions that have been raised since the overthrow of President Salvador Allende Gossens and his violent death, Kubisch made these points:

— The administration had received "some reports of a confidential nature" concerning claims by the junta that large quantities of Soviet bloc arms had been stockpiled by Allende supporters before the coup.

— The administration has no precise knowledge whether Allende did, in fact, commit suicide or whether he was shot down by his captors, as some of his supporters have claimed.

— The administration has not yet made a formal decision to establish diplomatic relations with the new government, but the likelihood is that this decision will be made soon.

Kubisch several times avoided questions asking him to pass judgment on the new regime, offering instead to testify later in closed session.

In discussing the reported stockpiling by Chilean leftists of European arms, for instance, Kubisch refused to go further than his hint that the state department has received intelligence reports about those stockpiles. He offered to return to the subject behind closed doors.

US, India eye debt problem

WASHINGTON — The United States and India are reported to be on the verge of solving a $3 billion debt problem that for years has blocked diplomatic moves toward better relations.

At issue is a massive accumulation of soft-currency rupees in debt repayment which has piled up in New Delhi over the years, but which is unlikely outside India. The debt represents an unpaid obligation in the Indian view

Storey races to 7-shot Jackpot open lead

Oliver and Hoss collect amateur gross, net money

Tom Storey of Las Vegas carved out a strong four-round 88 over the Jackpot course Saturday to just about end the first annual Jackpot Open.

Storey, the Nevada open champion, posted a seven-stroke lead over Brad Lozares of Saratoga, Calif., and Deray Simon, Castle Mesa, Calif., both professionals, and amateur Dean Oliver of Boise.

His 105 to their 202 should just about leave Sunday action at the Jackpot course a matter of fitting it in for second spot. The top 88 will compete in the final day of action at the Nevada course as the amateur gross-and-net championships were decided at Twin Falls many Saturday.

In-the-amateur-prize-list:

The cut unofficially came at 220.

Oliver, sinking two great puts of about 25 feet on 16 and 17, fashioned a five-under-par 63 to seize the amateur gross championship with his 202 three-day total.

Carl Hoss, regarded as the best eight handicap in the state, took the net prize at 192, one shot ahead of Willie Wonderlich.

The big story was Storey's fine 88 over the considerably longer Jackpot course. No one was able to come close to that score as a chill hit the Nevada.

The round probably cinched the $2,000 first-prize for the Las Vegas professional.

Aaron's sixth-inning shot, which stood 17,301 cheering fans on their feet even before he reached first base, pulled him to within two of Babe Ruth's mark of 714. Marty Perez and Darrell Evans singled before Aaron stroked the first pitch off loser Dave Roberts, 15-11, into the second row of the second deck 400-feet from home in leftfield.

Aaron wasn't originally supposed to play in the game. His name was left off the first Atlanta lineup but he said he felt so good when he came to the park he decided to play.

Aaron will not decide until just before game time whether he will play Sunday.

NRA buys

DENVER (UPI) - The Board of directors of the National Rifle Association (NRA) met Saturday in Denver to vote on purchase of 30,000 acres in northern New Mexico as site of the national headquarters for the 3-million-member organization.

"I was quite impressed with the property and I would say the chances of the association purchasing it are good," said C.R. Gutermuth, NRA president before the vote. "I liked the property very much."

NRA officials toured the land southwest of Raton, N.M., Friday with Gov. Bruce King, State Game and Fish Department Director Ladd Gordon and other New Mexico state officials.

Burley outlasts Broncos 15-14

BLACKFOOT - Ken Harper broke a 9-yard run on the first play of the fourth-quarter Friday night to life the Burley Bobcats past the stubborn Blackfoot Broncos 15-14.

Harper's run, coming with the Broncos leading 14-6, caught Blackfoot with a start to the inside and Harper was untouched as he sped the distance. Ed Rasmussen threw to Jerry Taylor for the decisive two points.

Blackfoot struck in the first period, an 18-yard punt return carrying the ball into the Burley six-yard line. Three plays later Capson plunged in but Burley stopped the point-after run. Burley rebounded with a rushing drive in the second quarter, Trent Martindale and Baker providing yardage that helped ease the pressure on the pointed-to Harper. Martindale plunged in from the 1-yard line and Harper booted for a 7-6 lead.

A pass interception returned 20 yards gave Blackfoot its second touchdown and Capson got the two-pointer.

Harper's run signaled a turn-about in the game, however, as Burley dominated the fourth quarter.

Burley nailed down the win with an interception near midfield in the final two minutes.

USC struggles past Georgia Tech 23-6

ATLANTA (UPI) — Flanker Lynn Swann score on a 40-yard punt return and 15-yard pass reception Saturday to lead top ranked Southern California to a tougher-than-expected 23-6 victory over Georgia Tech.

The Trojans, three-touchdown favorites, left only 17-6 until John McKay, the coach's son caught a 15-yard touchdown pass with barely three minutes left to play.

The Trojans didn't get the first touchdown until the final minute of the first period and the offense could claim no credit for that. It came on Swann's 40-yard return after the out-manned Yellow Jackets were forced to kick from their own seven-yard line.

Georgia Tech actually trailed only 7-3, with 4:53 left in the first half, thanks to a 40-yard field goal by Cam Bonifay. But Swann widened the lead to 14-3 with only 17 seconds left in the half when he caught a 15-yard strike from quarterback Pat Haden who also threw the late game touchdown pass to McKay.

Georgia Tech marched 44-yards after the second half kickoff but bogged down at the Southern Cal 23 and Bonifay kicked his second 40-yard field goal to make the score 14-6 with five minutes gone in the third period.

The Trojans got a big break midway through the final period when Jaffies Sims recovered a Tech fumble at the host six one play after Jim Lance had kicked out of bounds on the Tech two-yard line. But the Yellow Jacket defense which had played over its head all afternoon, allowed the Trojans only three yards in three plays and Southern Cal had to settle for a 20-yard field goal by Chris Lamiethu.

Nebraska overcomes errors, N.C. 31-14

LINCOLN, Neb. (UPI) — Error-prone Nebraska had to come from behind twice Saturday but scored 21 points in the final quarter to pull down a 31-14 victory over upset-minded North Carolina State. North Carolina State scored first on a 51-yard run-up-the-middle by Stan Trifly on the final play of the opening period.

But Nebraska, despite its numerous mistakes, was able to even the score late in the first half when Duane Hunton connected on a 40-yard scoring pass to Fredy Anderson.

Three pass interceptions and a lost fumble stymied the second-ranked Cornhuskers repeatedly during the first two quarters.

Fritts' opening touchdown came two plays after Ronald Banther recovered a Randy Borg bubble while returning a Wolfpack punt to the North Carolina State 24.

Bobby Eliz had picked-off a pass from starting Nebraska quarterback Steve Runtz in the end zone to end an early Cornhusker threat.

A 24-yard field goal by Rich Sanger early in the third period gave Nebraska its first lead, 10-7.

Irish rip Wildcats in 44-0 romp

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (UPI) — Tom Clements hit nine of 12 passes for 152 yards and a touchdown and ran for two touchdowns himself in the first half Saturday before retiring to the bench while No. 11-ranked Notre Dame shattered Northwestern, 44-0.

The victory maintained Coach Ara Parseghian's perfect opening game record with the Irish with 10 wins without defeat. It was the eighth straight for the Irish over Northwestern, all since Parseghian left the Wildcats.

Notre Dame scored every time it had the ball except once in the first half and needed no breaks to run up a 37-0 halftime lead. Art Best scored on a two-yard run and Ron Goodman and a run of the same distance.

The score offset Oregon's stunning plays to open the fourth-quarter. Norville Turner hit Russ Francis with a 67-yard scoring pass and Don Reynolds ran 46 yards for another touchdown on the first two plays of that period.

Keith Lively kicked both extra points and had given the Ducks a score with a 27-yard field goal on time ran out in the first half.

Boise St. overhauls Montana St. 27-17

BOISE (UPI) — A fired-up Boise State stopped Montana State University's runnungame in the second half to come from behind the coast to a 27-17 victory Saturday night.

The Bobcats led at half-time

17-14, but were unable to score in the second half. The Bronco's passing and running games started clicking in the third quarter, racking up two TDs in the third quarter and one in the fourth.

Bronco quarterback Ron Autelie passed to freshman end Terry Hull for a 12-yard touchdown strike on BSC's seventh play of the first quarter. Montana's Mike Dunbar handled off to fullback Don Bagley with 4:26 left to tie it up at the end of the quarter.

The Bobcats went ahead early in the second quarter with Dunbar keeping on a one-yard plunge overcenter. Pat Bolton added a 41-yard field goal with 4:31 left in the quarter.

But Boise State bounced back with a Jim McMillan 17-yard strike to receiver Dick Donahoe to end the first half trailing Montana 17-14.

Autelie Hill Donahoe with a 20-yarder, then ran in from one yard out to score with only 1:50 gone in the third stanza. Minutes later, Montana was forced to punt, Autelie ran four straight keeper plays, scoring on the final one for BSC's last tally.

Bobcat All-American candidate Bill Kollar, a 250-pound tackle, played outstanding defense until slowed by an ankle injury midway in the second quarter.

The 82 points scored before a Rice stadium crowd of 27,143 was the most by a Utah team since the 105-3 humiliation of Idaho College in 1923 and the most one-half game in WAC history, eclipsing ASU's 79-7 win over Colorado State in 1969.

The Utes, now 1-1 for the season after losing their opener to Texas Tech, 29-22, reeled off three first quarter touchdowns, two of them set up by pass interference and the third following a fumble recovery.

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (UPI) — Tyrone Wilson capped a last minute Michigan State drive with a two-yard touchdown run with 33 seconds remaining Saturday to give the Spartans a come-from-behind 14-3 victory over Syracuse.

The Spartans had appeared to have their victory hopes dashed with three minutes remaining when their offense was stopped at the Syracuse 20 and a field goal attempt by Dirk Kyrt was wide.

Stanford 17-10

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (UPI) — Sixth-rated Michigan crushed in on three Stanford mistakes Saturday and scored the first four times it had the ball to avenge a 10-2 Rose Bowl beating with a 47-10 victory.

The Wolverines threw just one pass in grinding out 45 yards the first time they had the ball, with junior tailback Chuck Heater running eight yards for the score.

Stanford ran one play, tumbled on its own 16-and that enabled senior fullback Ed Shuttlesworth to score from a yard out.

The Aztecs trailed 10 at the half, but they came back in the second half, concentrated on their running game, and scored three touchdowns cushioning.

Jesse Prettas completed only two of eight passing attempts during the first half.

But in the second half he turned the ball over to his running backs, who built a comfortable 14-point lead. Fullback Tim Thorn scored the first Aztec TD on a one-yard plunge four minutes into the second half, and Ben Ricardo kicked his first of five straight extra points to tie the game.

From all angles

By Larry Hovey

Versatility would probably be the best word to describe the outlook for College of Southern Idaho's basketball team this year.

"This is the most aggressive bunch of young men I've ever coached," says Coach Jerry Hale.

For the coach sees dozens of possibilities. He has a big team, a little team, a fast team, a ball control team, a running club. One that can dominate the backboards and, he believes, one that could put on a super defensive show. And one other thing he has: He can go a long way into the bench and still come up with people who can perform in certain situations very well.

The biggest men, of course, also give CSI its tallest team. They are Tom Barker, a transfer from Minnesota but a Texan born, who is 7-0 and Lon Frazier, who played his high school ball at Valley and Burley high schools and his freshman year at Idaho State. Lon is 6-11 and pushing upward.

Barker is a true Texan. He wants to spend his life owning a piece of Texas and raising cattle on it. No problem says Coach Hale. "Barker's the type of big man who'll be a millionaire by the time he's 27," he says, pointing out that's a pretty good start for ranching.

"Really," Coach Hale continues, "Tom is just getting into this game. He's starting to find out what it's about and how he can play it."

Ron Fryson, the top gun from last year and one-game point record holder, comes back looking better. In four and five minute spurts during the mini-skirmishes he can dominate. Arnold Dugger, the fresh from New York, is going to be super.

Lonnie Trotter, the 6-6 Californian, improves daily and will become a tremendously strong rebounder. Bob Durham, Twin Falls' Freshman, generally is better day to day than he was in his big game last year. Darrell Groves, Twin Falls' sophomore, is vastly improved and threatening; like we didn't believe could happen — to become excellent.

This type of appraisal could go on and on. But Coach Hale likes to look at other things.

"Look at what we can do at the guard line. We can go big with Dugger and Fryson which will give us a lot of offensive thrust. Or we can go with Kevin Dublin (New York fresh), Roger Campbell (Jerome grad) and Groves and defensively really stink people. Dugger and Fryson can go to forward with no problem and rebound with most people and score better than meat. Trotter is going to be a great one and I don't think anyone can keep Durham on the bench for a very long time of time. In fact, Durham can go at guard. Mike Phillips (Caldwell, Wash., soph) can play guard or forward and remember he's a high jumper. Inside we can be very tall or relatively short and very quick."

The coach also has guard Logan Parker, Jerome fresh; Mike Young, Meridian fresh, and Dean from Arizona. "We think these men are improving very well and figure into the picture more later in this season and will be solid players next year. But all three are capable of their rights right now," Hale says.

"We can make one or two changes from the bench or maybe just change a couple of people on the floor while the game is still going and present an entirely new look to the other team," Coach Hale says. "We've got two very big men, but you have to remember all our 6-4 and 6-5 men are great jumpers."

While the idea of getting these guys into action is obviously appealing to Coach Hale, he's not about to get into comparisons or prognostication.

"We have to have an edge over Treasure Valley, Big Bend, North Idaho and Ricks during the season before we can think about getting into the regional tournament," he points out. "Then if we do that and win the regional, too, there are three or four junior college clubs in Arizona that have great talent. We have to go down there and play an inter-regional (best of three) to get to nationals. We have great kids, but other schools do, too. It's a tough road."

Of note, Joe Cipriano, ex-Idaho coach and now entering his 10th year at the Nebraska helm, dropped by Twin Falls Saturday to see some old friends. He stuck around — surprise, surprise — to see the Eagles do a little four-on-four tag court running that evening. He promised to see a lot of his old pals in Twin Falls come next spring. But somehow, it didn't seem like it was for friendship's sake.

UCLA clobbers Hawkeyes 55-18

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Sophomore John Sciarra accounted for his first three career UCLA touchdowns, two on runs and the other on a pass Saturday night as the Bruins' wishbone exploded after a sputtering first quarter for a 55-18 romp over Iowa.

Sciarra, Mark Harmon's back-up quarterback, scored on a two-yard keeper, to cap a 21-point UCLA second quarter and connected on a 46-yard TD bomb to freshman tight-end Raymond Burks at 7:36 in the final period. Sciarra tallied his third touchdown of the night on a seven-yard rollout with two minutes remaining in the game.

Rebounding from a 10-13 shellacking at Nebraska two weeks ago, the Bruins trailed 10-3 at the end of one period before their offense could get untracked. Fullback James McAlister capped a 79-yard drive by diving into the zone from one yard out to tie the score at 10-10 with only 1:24 gone in the second period.

UCLA, a three-touchdown favorite, took advantage of two of seven Hawkeye turnovers in the game for its second and third scores. The Bruins' second TD came after Iowa fullback Phil Hayman fumbled and linebacker Rick Baska recovered the ball on the Hawkeye 27. Seven plays later, the Bruins went ahead for good with Harmon scoring on a one-yard keeper at 1:52.

Wood River defeats Jerome in overtime

HAILEY — Allen Patterson booted a fourth-down field goal in the first overtime session Friday afternoon to lift the Wood River Wolverines to a surprise 9-6 South Central Idaho Conference victory over the Jerome Tigers.

Lee scores 40 as

Mushers drop Bliss

BLISS — Junior Larry Lee exploded for 40 points while Layne Osborne tacked on 24 more Friday afternoon as the Camas County Mushers turned to the air game to defeat Bliss 76-10 for their 22nd consecutive victory.

Bliss did a good job in checking Camas County's rugged ground game for the most part. But Brent Geisler warmed up his throwing arm and quickly passed the Mushers out of reach. He had six touchdown passes by game's end.

Four-time hit threw to Lou who gathered in scoring passes of 42, 47, 65 and four yards. The junior, who probably will be a quarterback next year, tacked on a 75-yard kickoff return and a scoring burst of four yards in addition to a pair of conversions.

Osborne scored on runs of 88 and 19 yards from scrimmage and returned a punt 30 yards for another. He had three conversions.

Larry Ivie joined in with an 11-yard pass reception from Geisler for six points and one conversion reception and Chris Peck also caught a two-point pass.

Bliss broke the shutout in the fourth period on a 30-yard return of an intercepted pass and 47-yard off-tackle run.

Pilot defense stops Gooding in 6-0 win

GLENNS FERRY — The Glens Ferry Pilots, their embattled defensive unit turning in some great must stands, scored in the final two minutes to stun the Gooding Senators 6-0 Friday night.

The Pilots, unable to mount a serious threat, came up with a two-play sequence that decided the issue. The first was a 35-yard pass from Mark Shelby to Shane Meeker for 35 yards with a 15-yard penalty tacked on the end. That put the ball on the Gooding 14 and Shelby threw from there to Jay Black for the score.

Gooding had almost continuous pressure on the Pilot defense through the first half. But twice Glens Ferry turned the Senators back after they had secured first downs inside the Pilot 10-yard line.

It was the first SCIC loss for Jerome since Buhl accomplished it 19-6 on Nov. 11, 1970. It also was Wood River's second turn over Jerome in five years.

Gooding had almost continuous pressure on the Pilot defense through the first half. But twice Glens Ferry turned the Senators back after they had secured first downs inside the Pilot 10-yard line.

Gooding made two bids in the fourth period, driving to about the Hansen 25 before being turned back. The Husky offense then wore out most of the last four minutes with a short drive that ended the victory.

Kimberly made two bids in the fourth period, driving to about the Hansen 25 before being turned back. The Husky offense then wore out most of the last four minutes with a short drive that ended the victory.

Hansen shuts out Kimberly by 16-0

HANSEN — The Hansen Huskies drove for touchdowns in the first and third quarters Friday night when the defensive unit turned in a shutout effort in beating the Kimberly Bulldogs 16-0.

Hansen took the opening kickoff and drove 70 yards for the go-ahead points. A penalty gave the Huskies one first down and Marty Jacobs immediately made that payoff with a 35-yard strike to Mark Stanger. That carried to the 13-yard line and five plays later Jacobs sneaked in from the one. He threw to Byron Stanger for the points-after.

The Huskies started their second drive midway through the third period. It opened with a 13-yard pass to Mark Stanger, followed by a 10-yard run by Doug Borah. Seconds later Ron Mothershead burst the last 37 yards for the score, getting a key block from Cliff Borah at the five. Mothershead also ran in the extra points.

Kimberly made two bids in the fourth period, driving to about the Hansen 25 before being turned back. The Husky offense then wore out most of the last four minutes with a short drive that ended the victory.

Buhl rallies past Shelley in last half

BUHL — Ken Folkings rallied Buhl's offense for two second-half touchdowns and the defense came up with two strong goal line stands to eke out an 18-14 victory over Shelley Friday night.

Shelley took the opening kickoff and marched 24 yards, taking the lead on Foster's four-yard run. Shelley converted and that point kept the Eastern Idahoans ahead for a long time.

On its next possession, Shelley rolled to the Buhl 30 but Folkings stopped that with an interception on the four and a return to the 48. Rich Lauda's running and a 10-yard Charlie Hepworth to Pat Hamilton pass took the ball to the one and Lauda plunged in.

Late in the half, Shelley recovered a fumble at the Buhl 25 and the Indians held for four plays on first down from the eight as the clock ran out.

Buhl fumbled shortly after the second half kickoff, Shelley moving the 27 yards in four plays. The payoff came on a pass from Foster to Joe Higham of 10 yards.

Folkinga bit four of five passes in a reply march by the Indians and cut it within two when Gail Paulson scored from the 11. But the two-point pass fell incomplete.

Pat Hamilton's interception and short return to the Indian 40 set up the go-ahead drive for Buhl. Lauda shook loose on a 35-yard sprint and Folkings bit Hepworth for 10 more. Rob Hejeloh swept end for the decisive touchdown from the one.

Late in the game Buhl made two goal-line stands—the last one ending on fourth and eight when Guy Lemmons sacked the Shelley quarterback for a 17-yard loss.

SCORING FOR VALLEY, halfback Kim Beams crosses the goal line against the Filer Wildcats after a one-yard burst. The Vikings, running their record to 4-0, slipped Filer 14-12 in the final minute—their first loss of the year.

Vikings drop Filer in last two minutes

EDEN — The Valley Vikings turned a blocked punt into a touchdown and then connected on a two-point conversion pass with 1:09 remaining to top Filer's Wildcats 14-12 in a battle of undefeated Friday night.

Darrell Fitzpatrick broke through to block Filer punt, setting the Vikings up to the Filer 34 with just under three minutes to play. The Wildcats then threw in two major penalties that helped carry the ball to the one-foot line and quarterback Lonnie Seller, on a second-effort spin, just scored the touchdown. Kim Beams, showing great poise under a strong rush, then completed a halfback pass to Rocky Haggart for the decisive two points.

Up to that time Filer appeared headed for the win despite blowing three excellent scoring chances. Until Fitzpatrick's play, Valley kept itself in trouble with silly penalties, particularly late when a roughing the kicker and then a piling-on took Filer from its own two and then the 21-yard lines. Those two situations appeared to give Filer enough time and territory to shove Valley too far away for late-game heroes.

Shoshone replied with a drive to the Wendell three but died on downs after losing 17 yards in four tries. Wendell used up the rest of the second period with a march capped by Kent Sisson's quarterback sneak.

Troy Scott got Wendell's third touchdown on a pass interception and 10-yard return and Sisson turned to Bitterli for 30 yards and the final points in the fourth period.

Richfield opened on top when, on the third play of the game, Brown uploaded a 50-yard pass play to Piper and Braunerger got the two extra points. Braunerger then came back in the second period to score on bursts of 30, 31, and 16 yards.

Gaylen Edwards capped a Richfield drive in the third period by getting the last two yards.

In the fourth, the Brown to Piper combination clicked on a 40-yard pass and Brown threw to Jamie Anderson for the two points. Ron Holland's 21-yard run after an interception got the last Richfield TD and Mike Robinson swept for the points after.

Idaho humiliated by Iowa State as sophomore shines

AMES (UPI) — Sophomore quarterback Wayne Stanley, playing his first varsity game, fired three touchdown passes and engineered a flawless Iowa State offensive attack Saturday as the Cyclones crushed Idaho 48-10.

The Cyclones made the Iowa State coaching debut of Earle Bruce a complete success by rolling up a 24-0 first quarter lead and never losing command. Stanley powered Iowa State to scores the first four times the Cyclones had the ball by capitalizing on two Vandal fumbles and a pass interception.

Tom Goedjen opened the Cyclone scoring with a field goal early in the game after an ISU drive stalled, but Stanley then took command and hit 10-yard scoring passes to both fullback Moses Moore and end Keith Kreppel and a 21-yarder to end Eddie Jones.

Mike Strachan, the Big Eight's leading rusher last year, also scored on a two-yard run in the first quarter as the Cyclone defense refused to surrender a first-down-to-Idaho in the first half.

Houston outscraps S.C. 27-19

HOUSTON (UPI) — Quarterback D. C. Nobles rushed for one touchdown and directed two other scoring drives to lead the University of Houston to a 27-19 victory over stubborn South Carolina Friday night.

Nobles, setting up the Cougar drives with precisely timed pitch outs to backs Leonard Parker and Reggie Cherry, scored on a three-yard burst in the second period. Parker sprinted from five yards out and Cherry scored from 10 yards out late in the third quarter.

Miami surprises

Texas 20-15

MIAMI (UPI) — Three Texas fumbles led to three touchdown plunges by junior tailback Woody Thompson Friday night and the upstart Miami Hurricanes upset the fifth-ranked Longhorns 20-15.

In addition to all the Miami scoring coming off drives that began with recovered fumbles, a last-ditch Longhorn drive died when quarterback Marty Atkins fumbled.

Miami rolled to a 20-6 third-quarter lead on touchdown bursts of one, eight and one yards by the 214-pound Thompson. Fiery Hurricane quarterback Coy Hall engineered the marches.

Five turnovers killed Texas after the Longhorns had taken a 6-0 lead on a four-yard touchdown run by Roosevelt Leeks.

Murtaugh bows to Declo 16-6

DECLO — The Declo Hornets capped homecoming Saturday afternoon by topping the Murtaugh Red Devils 16-6 in a Magic Valley Conference battle.

The Hornets, trying for a third straight playoff berth, scored their first touchdown on a two-yard run by Randy Brackenbury, who then threw to Rob Hiding for the two-point conversion.

Declo's second score came on a one-yard burst by Hiding and Brackenbury added the points after.

Although Murtaugh had a slight edge in ground-gaining statistics, the Devils could score only once. Clint Dille got that on a 52-yard sprint.

Declo's defense came up with three pass interceptions to help control the Murtaugh offense.

Georgia rolls over Clemson

ATLANTA (UPI) — Freshman speedster Gene Washington and sophomore Glynn Harrison ignited sluggish Georgia in the second half Saturday to roll the Bulldogs to a 31-14 victory over Clemson.

Intermission was to the Iowa season, were limited to 31 State 45. And the Cyclones held a 31-0 lead at the half.

Stanley connected on eight of 15 passes for 164 yards, while Strachan gained 81 yards on the ground. Both were removed from the game in the third quarter as Bruce cleared his bench.

The Vandals, now 1-2 on the Moore added a three-yard scoring run in the third quarter, and Goedjen hit on a 26-yard field goal to boost the third quarter lead to 41-0.

Sophomore fullback Paul Konrad finished the Cyclones scoring with a three-yard touchdown run to cap a 77-yard Iowa State drive with just 2:35 remaining in the game.

TORONTO (UPI) — Welterweight champion Jose Napoles Saturday retained his title with a unanimous 15-round decision over Canada's Clyde Gray Maple Leaf Gardens.

The 33-year old Cuban native, who emigrated to Mexico in 1960, won the fight on the tables of the two ringside judges, 71-67 and 71-65. Referee Jim Edison scored it 70-67.

Earlier, Edison's tally was added incorrectly at 69-69 and the fight was declared a split decision for Napoles.

Napoles was clearly the aggressor in the fight and knocked his 26-year-old opponent in the fifth round with a left-right combination.

Gray was able to recover after a minatory eight-count but on the whole was only able to maintain a defensive battle.

Gray, the Canadian and Commonwealth champion, had his best round in the 15th when he rallied strongly and stunned Napoles with a left hook.

The win was the 22nd in 20 fights for the champion and his 10th successful title defense.

At a hearing of the House Banking Committee, Garrett called for legislation to require banks and other institutional investors to make full disclosure of their trading activity so other investors will know what they are buying and selling.

The trust departments of banks - which manage other people's money for them - handle common stock portfolios worth more than those administered by all investment-advisory insurance companies, self-administered employee benefit plans, foundations and educational endowments combined, Garrett said.

In 1969, he said, trust departments managed about $280 billion, with about 60 percent in common stock. By 1971, the assets were worth over $36 billion, and now the figure is considerably higher, he said.

"When a single institution manages such vast sums," Garrett said, "it can disrupt the market despite the 'market making machinery' which exists to create orderly buying and selling."

The institutional decision immediately to acquire, or dispose of, vast amounts of a particular security puts great strain on that mechanism and often results in potentially harmful, temporary price volatility," he said.

Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Tex., chairman of the Senate Subcommittee on Financial Markets, in New York City speech expressed concern about the decline of the role of the individual investor.

Ho said bank trust departments, mutual funds, insurance funds, pension funds and other institutions now have nearly half the shares on the New York Stock Exchange, compared with 30 per cent a decade ago.

"I believe that a projection of figures like these raises serious questions, such as whether we are going down a road toward concentrations of economic power which will someday dominate not only the securities market but also our entire business community," Bentsen said.

In 1969, he said, trust departments managed about $280 billion, with about 60 percent in common stock. By 1971, the assets were worth over $36 billion, and now the figure is considerably higher, he said.

What You're Saying —

What will the long range consequences of the energy crisis be?

Ike Heldemann, Twin Falls:
"In my opinion, it's going to get worse. We're going to have to develop some new fuels as power. It's not just power, but everything — food, fuel, steel — it seems like there's a shortage of everything now-a-days."

Arlene Warner, Boise:

"I think we will have to make some real changes in our lifestyle. We have been living in a glorious age of no limitations at all. Suddenly, even material success doesn't mean we are going to have the freedom to use the things that consume energy in the way that they have in the past. We have seen the enemy, and the enemy is us."

C. Gale Baker, Boise:
"In the long range I would say the consequences will be very good. Planning and knowledgeable thinking will help the economy and we'll cut costs down."

Jack Kindred, Gooding:

"I think it looks pretty bad. Things will get worse so that we'll have blackouts and the like. Hopefully, it'll make people stop and think before they go wasting all the energy."

Sam Vest, Twin Falls:
"There's a lot of waste. I imagine most of the public will have to limit themselves to using less electricity. As far as your oil, and gas shortage is concerned, I would think that the Alaska pipeline will relieve some of the problem."

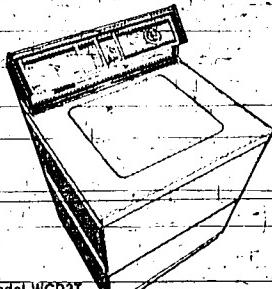

Jack Kinyon, Castleford:

"It's going to have so many powerful impacts it's hard to say what the long range consequences will be. The environmentalists caused the crises by stopping every bit of your industries which produce various types of energy. We'll have to find the energy somewhere and I don't know what the consequences will be."

Bureaucracy inertia shown in plight of disabled man

By BILL LAZARUS
Times-News Writer

TWIN FALLS — For some people bureaucracy works at an infuriatingly slow pace.

For Harry Sirucek — destitute, crippled and unable to obtain social security — bureaucracy does not seem to work at all.

Now living with his wife in a tar paper shack on $35 a month, Sirucek originally requested social security nearly a year ago following a heart attack. Dave Bochmann, director of welfare advocacy at the Community Action Agency, said the request was turned down because the doctor who treated Sirucek specifically for his heart condition reported that Sirucek could work without endangering his heart.

When Sirucek applied for work at the Department of Employment in Twin Falls, however, he could not be helped. "At this point he is not employable," Royal Slotten, employment counselor, reported. Slotten mentioned Sirucek's health as the reason he was unemployed.

In mid-January, 1973, Sirucek applied to the Social Security Administration (SSA) for a reconsideration of the denial of social security payments. According to Bochmann, Sirucek applied for an administrative hearing of the case on April 25 after he received no word on the status of the reconsideration for four months.

Bochmann said he contacted the SSA on Sirucek's behalf in June. He was told the request for a hearing had been filed away pending a decision on the request for reconsideration made six months before.

The SSA office in Boise also told Bochmann that the reconsideration request had just been sent to Baltimore, Md. for a determination. Bochmann said the office offered no explanation of why the request remained in Boise for six months before being sent to Baltimore for a decision.

Two weeks later Bochmann said he again contacted SSA in Boise and was told that Sirucek's request had been sent to Baltimore the previous day.

Bochmann then wrote Sen. Frank Church requesting that Church look into the reasons for the SSA's inaction on the case. Church responded with a message from the SSA promising to speed up the reconsideration proceedings.

Bochmann said he received word from the SSA office last week that more information from Sirucek's heart doctor is necessary before the case can be reconsidered.

"I think part of the problem is that social security is not asking the doctor to do a complete physical," Bochmann said, fearful that the additional information requested might not be relevant to Sirucek's condition.

"They have questions about his heart, but the problem is that he is crippled. He also has a problem with schizophrenia," Bochmann said.

"It appears to me that this thing (Sirucek's request for reconsideration) has followed pretty much a normal course," Virgil Naser, assistant director at the Department of Disability Determinations at the SSA, said.

Naser said that around 60 per cent of requests for reconsideration are reviewed within 45 days, and that only about 10 per cent run longer than 70 days. He said that delays in obtaining doctor's reports and having to obtain different reports sometimes cause consideration reviews to stretch out.

Naser said he is "not at liberty" to give the details in Sirucek's case. He did not deny Bochmann's version of the SSA's handling of the case.

If Sirucek's request for reconsideration is rejected, a hearing on the case probably will take place within one or two months, Naser said. Bochmann said a woman at the SSA office reported that setting up a hearing would take at least six months because of the current backlog of cases.

While the SSA gathers evidence for reconsideration, Sirucek and his wife continue to live in a shack which his brother lets him use. Sirucek said his income is $35 per month, received for sale of some of his farmland. His refrigerator is stuffed with many loaves of cheap bread, strawberry jam and a bit of bologna — food to last a week and a half until the next $35 comes in.

Aged 58 but looking closer to 80, Sirucek, with back hunched forward, hobbies about the house. When he speaks of his situation he becomes agitated. "They all think I get support from somewhere."

"Hell, I got nothing," he exclaims bitterly. He moved slowly in his farmer's overalls and appears to be in pain. "I've got arthritis or something. It's all through me, I can't move," he says.

According to Bochmann, Sirucek has not been eligible for welfare or food stamps because he owns some land. "But the land is of little value and can't be eaten," Bochmann said. Sirucek's wife looks after her husband and cannot work; his two sons are unable to find employment paying enough to be able to take care of their parents, Bochmann added.

Bochmann believes the problem is that the SSA is too distant, too impersonal to react to Sirucek's problem.

"I think it shows the inertia of the bureaucracy," Bochmann said. "It's operated in the absence of any personal contact with the individuals who need help. Decisions are made in Boise and Baltimore on the basis of papers. If whoever does the paperwork doesn't do a good job, then the person is turned down."

Author claims potential killers reveal tendency

By EDMUND J. ROONEY

(c) Chicago Daily News

NEW YORK — Murders rapidly are increasing? Who kills and why?

New York Psychiatrist

David Abrahamson offers some answers in "The Murdering Mind" (Harper and Row, $6.95).

He says potential killers often reveal their homicidal tendencies through emotional displays. Some of these tip-offs are extreme feelings of revenge and fantasies of grandiose accomplishments, loneliness, loss of self-esteem, and errors of speech or spelling related to emotional troubles in early childhood.

Other tip-offs include suicidal tendencies (with depression) and seeing the victim as a composite picture of the murderer's self-image. Sex is also a big factor, Abrahamson says. "Sex is substituted for violence and violence for sex; the two are closer to each other than we realize. This is the reason why homicide often takes place between people who are acquainted with each other."

But Abrahamson will get a big argument from feminists with his contention that "many a young girl without realizing it, in having sex with a particular man, and has seduced him before being attacked, thereby becoming a victim of her seduction in accordance with her unconscious, self-destructive desires."

Several top hoodlums are telling all (or so they say) in books this year. The latest is "Thus Big Cherry: The Confessions of a Master Criminal" by Robert H. Adleman (Dial, $7.95). Adleman, a former Philadelphia newspaperman, describes Sylvan (Big Cherry) Scolnick as a 600-pound con man who waddled his way through embezzlements, credit-card fraud, and a phony bankruptcy. But it all earned this "master criminal" a deserved prison sentence.

Robert Daley, also an ex-reporter, tells of his year's service as a Deputy Commissioner for the New York Police Department in "Target Blue" (Delacorte, $8.95). He makes a strong case against police secrecy with lively portrayals of New York's Police Comr. Patrick V. Murphy, Super-Madam Kavler Hollander and Mayor John Lindsay. Much, much less interesting — even boring — is "Vice Squad" by Robert H. Williams (Crowell, $7.95). Its superficial examination of Chicago cops just doesn't click.

Another flank-out is "The Private Lives of Public Enemies," by Hank Moegick with Joseph L. Nella (Wyden, $8.95). Through Moegick trots out some ancient but juicy anecdotes about Chicago's Tony (Big Tuna) Accardo, they don't help.

Whimle Ruth Judd: "The Trunk Murders," by J. Dwight Dobbins and Robert J. Hendricks (Grosgot & Dunlap, $6.95), is a chilling re-enactment of one of the nation's all-time grisly crimes. In 1931 Mrs. Judd was charged with chopping up the bodies of two companions, and shipping them in a trunk to Los Angeles. Convicted of one murder, she was never tried on the second charge. She escaped from prison seven times, the last for seven years before her recapture, and was freed on parole in 1971.

Two new books on narcotics detectives are first-rate. Andrew Tully does a superb biography of the U.S. Customs Bureau in "The secret war against dope" (Coward, McCann & Geoghegan $7.95). "Contrabandista," by Evert Clark and Nicholas Horrock (Prager, $6.95), by two Newsweek writers, concerns dope smuggling from south of the border.

"The Criminologist," edited by Nigel Marland (Library Press, $8.95), contains an exhaustive roundup of police techniques, and should interest general readers as well as homicide investigators and pathologists.

Magic Valley cities, counties put revenue sharing funds to many uses

By GEORGE WILEY
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — A survey of southern Idaho counties and cities shows that most are using their federal revenue sharing funds for building improvements, sewers, streets, and equipment.

Twin Falls County alone, among governmental units surveyed, has budgeted money for the poor — $5,000 for senior citizens programs.

Cassia County alone has budgeted a salary increase for employees, which might be considered aid to the poor.

Twin Falls City has extended a helping hand to poor animals by budgeting $150 per month to the Humane Society.

Hazelton has spent $2,000 of its money to install cement ditches so city residents can water their lawns.

Sun Valleyites are using their revenue sharing for a bicycle path to Ketchum.

Elsewhere, courthouses are being refurbished; pumps installed for winter wells, sewer lines laid, streets constructed and paved, police cars, street sweepers and trucks purchased, curbs and gutters laid, calculators, adding machines and copiers bought.

There does not appear to be much outright frivolity. The trend is to provide long-overdue "extras."

Perhaps the most innovative use is funding for land-use planning in the more highly populated areas.

There is a tendency to be leisurely in the expenditure of funds, with administrators content to let money lie in the bank accumulating interest.

County by county and city by city the survey shows:

— Twin Falls County: According to the County Clerk has received and has budgeted $412,000 in revenue sharing funds through 1972. An additional $247,000 has been received from Jan. 1 through June 30, 1973, which won't be budgeted until the second week of January, 1974. Of the $412,000 the county received in 1972, the commissioners budgeted about $283,000 for capital improvements, including reconstructing the county jail, clearing the county courthouse and the other county buildings, and building a roof on the grandstand at the fairgrounds.

To date, the county has signed an $82,000 contract for remodeling of the jail; a $59,000 contract for cleaning the courthouse and other buildings; and a $72,300 contract for reworking the water system at the fairgrounds. The Commissioners also want a cover for the fairgrounds grandstand, but the bills were higher than their estimated $10,000.

In addition to the major capital improvements, commissioners budgeted $30,000 for remodeling a public health building; $25,000 for a road to a sanitary landfill; $30,000 for capital improvements to the City-County airport; $30,000 for street improvements at Magic Valley Memorial Hospital, mainly for an expanded parking lot; and $5,000 for senior citizens programs and services to the aged.

A contract for approximately $4,700 has been let to pave the hospital parking lot and additional expenditures in the other areas of about $10,000 have been made.

— Twin Falls City: To date Twin Falls City has received $489,300 in revenue sharing through July 30, 1973. The major item budgeted by the city is $320,000 for a new fire station and related radio equipment and trucks.

So far the city has spent $16,400 on a new pump wagon and $4,125 for architects' fees for planning the fire station.

Bids for the fire station will be called for in early October, according to city officials.

The city also has budgeted for the following items and made the following expenditures (in parentheses): Comprehensive planning, $20,000 (none); test equipment and plat reproduction, $10,075 ($2,882); two calculators and two vehicles, one each for the sanitation and irrigation departments, $1,700; ($600 for a calculator for both departments); police siren, radio and radar equipment, $2,475 (none); tractor and sweeper for the parks department, $7,400 (none); a building and a vehicle for the recreation department, $8,300 ($1,428 for a pickup); shredder and mower for the golf course, $1,300 ($550 for a mower); a dump truck, street sweeper, compressor grader and sidewalkers for the streets department, $70,500 ($3,884 for a compressor, $7,103 for a sweeper, $15,200 for dump trucks); library books and racks, $40,000 (none); property purchase, $35,000 (none); miscellaneous, $3,000 (none); Humane Society, $150 per month ($750).

The city's budgeting totals $516,750 which includes an expected payment for the remainder of 1973. Total city expenditures, thus far, according to City Clerk Edith Koontz, total about $55,000.

— Jerome County: According to Jerome County Clerk, Virginia Ricketts, the county has received about $161,000 through June. Of this, about $90,000 has been budgeted for courthouse improvements including installation of a new heating and cooling system.

So far, $39,000 of the courthouse budget has been spent. In addition, the county has purchased a new sheriff's car for $5,000 from revenue sharing funds.

An additional $25,000 has been budgeted for sanitary landfill but has not been spent. The county now has roughly $117,000 in revenue sharing funds in the bank, including $40,000 which has been received but not budgeted.

— Jerome City: According to City Clerk Marilyn Bragg, Jerome has received $112,122 in revenue sharing funds through 1972 and up to July, 1973. The money has been budgeted as follows: $10,467 for administration, law enforcement and fire protection, mainly in the form of capital expenditures for automobiles and office machines; $31,607 for street construction; $3,500 for tennis courts; for the parks and recreation department; $10,000 for a pump and miscellaneous equipment for the water department; $66,700 for sewer pipe and pipe installation.

According to published reports, Jerome City has spent, thus far, $10,644 for sewer improvements; $3,534 for general administration equipment; $8,241 for health equipment; $5,734 for street equipment, construction maintenance; $5,122 for public safety equipment and construction and an additional $300 for maintaining existing safety services; $424 for recreation and culture; $453 for health services upkeep, and $200 for financial administration, for a total expenditure of revenue sharing funds of $44,328.

— Cassia County: According to County Assessor Frank Kearns, the county has received $244,934 through June 30. Of this, $153,000 has been budgeted but none spent.

The major budget items are voting machines, highway improvements and salary increases for county employees.

Kearns said the remaining revenue sharing would be split up to pay for incidental expenses.

For next year, when the county hopes to receive $199,277, he said the computer program will be updated, funds will be allotted for county planning and for personnel and the remainder will be used for office equipment and road equipment and for repair and maintenance of the county courthouse.

— Burley: According to the City Clerk, Burley has received a total of $216,343 in revenue sharing funds since the program began last year.

Thus far, $42,000 has been spent — $20,000 for storm sewers; $11,000 for three police cars; $10,000 for sewer sealing (only partly completed); $2,000 for library books, and $1,500 for laboratory equipment.

Burley has budgeted $30,000 for curb and gutter maintenance; $23,300 for street work; $19,000 for a new dump truck; $20,000 for playground equipment; $20,000 for blacktopping pavement at the golf course; $11,000 for cemetery improvement; $10,000 for sewer sealing; $6,000 for executive and regional planning; $4,500 for an accounting machine for the city clerk; $5,000 for recodifying the city ordinance; $11,000 for police cars; $10,000 for water and land use; $4,000 for city hall and library maintenance; $3,600 for a van for the engineering department; $2,000 for library books.

Burley's total revenue sharing funds budgeted equal $184,400, according to the City Clerk, leaving $31,943 in 1973 estimated revenue sharing income to carry over to 1974.

— Blaine County: The county has received $70,427 through June 30, 1973, according to County Clerk Marie Irie. The county has purchased a tractor for the solid waste program for $17,000, a truck for the road and bridge department for $20,000, and a copying machine for the courthouse for $1,295, among other items.

The County presently has $32,132 in revenue sharing funds remaining.

— Sun Valley: The city plans to use the $8,064 in revenue sharing it has received through July to build a bicycle path between Sun Valley and Ketchum.

According to Sun Valley Comptroller One Hap, part of the path has been completed and is "really being well used."

Final costs for the path have not been determined. It is classified as a safety measure and is also for the use of pedestrians.

— Hailey: Hailey has budgeted its total revenue sharing through June 30 of $16,055 to street improvements. No money has yet been spent, according to published reports.

— Buhl: According to City Clerk Francis McArthur, Buhl has received $56,575 through June 30. The city budgeted $20,024 for street construction, and has spent $15,292 of that thus far.

In addition, $26,500 was budgeted for a new pump for the city's water well and a bed for a garbage truck and other health items. So far, $10,265 of this money has been spent.

Also budgeted: For a compressor, a compactor and a stripper for the street department, $5,100 ($5,227 has been spent with the additional $127 coming out of another fund); for police, fire department and school equipment, $1,250 ($105 spent for police loading equipment); for fencing at the Buhl airport, $1,000 (not spent); for a baseball backfield and storage shed at the city ballpark, $600 (all spent); for a new adding machine and cash register, $2,664 (not spent); and for library equipment, $920 ($400 spent for a microchrome reader and projector).

Buhl has about $25,391 now remaining of its revenue sharing monies. The revenue sharing budget has been completed for all of 1973.

— Kimberly: As of July, Kimberly has received $17,811 according to City Clerk Edith Widmer. Of this, $6,270 has been budgeted and spent for remodeling the city hall. "And we need it," said Mrs. Widmer.

An additional $7,400 was budgeted for moving and remodeling the old Union Pacific Depot building which was donated to the city and will be used for a civic center, a youth center and, possibly, a public library. So far, $4,000 has been spent to cut the depot in three sections, move them, put them back together and close one end.

Kimberly has also spent $5,600 for a new tractor for the streets department, and has budgeted but not spent $3,000 for a new public tennis court.

Mrs. Widmer said Kimberly has $3,118 remaining from revenue funds received and expects an additional $3,338 in October.

— Eden: According to published reports, Eden Village has received $5,501 through June 30. None of the money has been spent. It has been budgeted for a water tank at the city well, with 70 per cent of the money going for construction and the remaining 30 per cent for equipment.

— Hansen: According to published reports, Hansen has received $3,708 through June 30. Of this, $2,582 has been spent for water and sewer construction, leaving a current balance of $1,126.

— Murtaugh: Murtaugh has received $1,273 through June 30, according to reports. Of this, $391 has been spent for public safety equipment, $207 for public safety maintenance, and $74 for recreation maintenance, leaving a current balance of $609.

— Hollister: According to published reports, Hollister has received $339 through June 30. This money, plus $3.2 in accumulated interest, has been spent for a new pump for the village water well.

— Hazelton: According to City Clerk Jackie Christofferson, $11,018 has been received through June 30. Of this, $3,292 has been spent, leaving a balance, including interest, of $8,748.

Hazelton spent $2,000 for concrete ditches for city irrigation. Mrs. Christofferson said the city's ditches were in real bad shape. So far, she said, no one has questioned the use of revenue sharing funds for this purpose.

Hazelton has also spent $1,182 for student summer recreation activities, and $110 for street improvements.

Kimberly has spent budgeted $7,400 for moving and remodeling the old Union Pacific depot building.

They'll benefit

Cinema not born to serve humanity

By DAVID ELLIOTT
(c) Chicago Daily News

Andre Malraux believed that "the cinema" was not born to serve humanity — it was born to make money."

With the film audience reduced, the costs of production rising, and the moralists yelling at the door (thanks to the Supreme Court), there's no doubt that today the terrible pressures of compromise are greater than ever. A new director is likely to have one good chance to prove himself — commercialism can mean artistic oblivion.

Movies are the one art in which an artist who fails can have his tools taken away from him — even an architect, like Paolo Soleri, can still design works even if they are never built.

The increased gamble of making movies today has worked both ways, driving some directors into the safety of commercial junk like the Kung-Fu and sex films (along with a more distinguished kind of whoring) — and making others — those with real talent — risk everything on projects that are fresh and original. The result is an intensification at the extremes — bad films are perhaps worse than ever, but good ones are as good as they've ever been.

Because the old studio refining mill has broken down, new directors may have less polish, but their work has more vitality than any we've seen since the French new wave of the late 1950s.

The new kids are not children. George Lucas

Francis Coppola, Peter Bogdanovich, Brian de Palma, James Frawley, Martin Scorsese, Dick Williams and Robert Altman (who is 45) are shrewd men who have learned to serve both their muse and their market — the man with the checkbook. There's commercialization there, of course, but it's the same kind that in the past has given us most of the better American movies. Without it, we wouldn't have an art, because we wouldn't have an industry.

Simultaneously with the emergence of a new generation (including foreign directors I haven't mentioned) has come the decline of the old. Many of the top directors of the last 30 years have recently gone into a precipitous decline. Fresher talents have grabbed the steering wheel — if not always commercially, at least artistically.

Movies seem to be going through a creative menopause.

The best movies still seem young and fresh, but they've lost their innocence, that naive bloom that gave so much charm to the better movies of the past.

The last year seems to have begun a turning point. With the exception of the Old Master Fred Zinnemann, who struck fire again with "Day of the Jackal," And hopefully of Francois Truffaut (whose "Day for Night" is the kick-off film at this year's New York Festival), the lions of the '50s and '60s have stumbled badly.

Fallini's "Roma," Bergman's "Cries" and "Whispers," Vianet's "Ludwig," Bunuel's "Discreet Charm of the Bourgeoisie" and Chabrol's "Ten Days' Wonder" are elegantly made movies — their technique is faultless, but they are also tired films, using effects and emotions left over from their directors' better work. They have no surprise, no magic.

Probably most of these men will still make good movies. Hitchcock, de Sica, Don Siegel and Satyajit Ray have done so recently. But Ford is dead; Mankiewicz has retired; Welles, Mizoguchi, Boetticher and Nicholas Ray can get no work.

Obviously, the tide is going out. Just as well, for a whole generation of talent.

Obviously, the tide is going out fast for a whole great generation of talent.

Just as important, and almost as melancholy, is the exhaustion of old forms of content, the great genres that have been the staple of American films and often the inspiration of the better European work. It has been years since we've seen a musical comedy; adventure or spy film, love story or swashbuckler to equal the better work of the past.

The fading old forms have provided the opportunity for the new generation of directors to both honor and surpass tradition. The best of them know how to stand on the shoulders of the past, rather than simply curling up in its remains, and going to sleep (like the arch-sentimentalist, Peter Bogdanovich).

Actor Leonard Nimoy . . . will adults watch?

Star Trek may get prime time

By VERNON SCOTT
HOLLYWOOD (UPI)

"Star Trek" has returned to television as a kid's Saturday morning cartoon show, but if enough adults tune in there's a possibility it may move to prime time.

At least that prospect has occurred to some NBC savants and to actor Leonard Nimoy who is reprising his role as Mr. Spock, the cool Vulcan in the live-action series which enjoyed three years on the air.

Nimoy, along with co-star William Shatner and a handful of other cast members, will be supplying the voices for their cartoon images.

"I told my agent if the show goes into prime time we get a new financial deal, and that's written into the contract," said the guy who wore pointed ears in the original series. "There's not all that much money in kid shows. After all, how much money can they spend on the sponsor's product."

"But I feel there will be so much interest in the return of Star Trek that someone at NBC will put the show on at night."

Nimoy was not just whistling in the dark, or anywhere else. There is an international Star Trek Club of science fiction freaks who continue to dig the series five years after its demise. The show is still seen in reruns in most of the big cities of the United States and not a few abroad.

"In February I went to the second annual Star Trek convention in New York City," Nimoy said. "There were between seven and eight thousand people there from all over the world."

"They run a lot of the shows for the members, listen to talks from some of the script writers and actors on the show. They sell one another various things related to the show."

"Since the show went off the air I have been misquoted as saying I was sick of the show and of my identification as Mr. Spock.

"I attended the convention to set the record straight. I wasn't unhappy with the show at all. I like it. I've always considered myself a character actor, and I've worked steadily since the show was cancelled."

Proof of Nimoy's affection for "Trek" and Spock is the fact he is providing Spock's voice for the cartoon version of the show. He will not grow rich on the salary.

Moreover, Nimoy will spend the next few weeks in New York preparing to star in a Broadway version of "Full Circle" for Otto Preminger.

Nimoy and other cast members record their voices for the cartoon separately and together. Earlier this year the ensemble cast, along with the original show's producer, Gene Roddenberry, held a reunion at the studio where the new series is made.

"It was good seeing all those familiar faces again," said Nimoy. "And we are all pleased with the cartoons."

"It's weird seeing ourself as a cartoon the first time. But the space ship looks exactly like the set we had on the show, and the other sets are much more elaborate because they can do wild, far-out things with cartoons that we could never recreate for live-action features."

"Old Star Trek fans will love the new show. I wonder how the kids will feel when they are joined in front of the set on Saturday by their parents."

Bit Parts: Character actor Al Lettieri will co-star with Charles Bronson in "Mr. Majesty" . . . Joan Collins will guest star in an episode of Orson Welles' "Great Mysteries" . . . Jackie Gleason's first dramatic show for NBC is scheduled for the 1974-75 season.

English naturalist goes on US busman's holiday

By LINDA CHARLTON
(c) New York Times News Service

WASHINGTON — To tour a zoo with Naturalist Gerald Durrell is to appreciate what it might have been to inspect a kitchen with Escottier.

Mr. Durrell, whose 20 books on animals have sold a total of more than one million copies and made his expert, loving but unsentimental view of the many species we share the world with familiar to readers both in his native England and in this country, is in the US for the first time, just embarked on a 10-week lecture tour to raise funds for an organization known as Save Animals from Extinction, or SAFE, which aims to do just that.

A man with his own zoo, the Jersey Wildlife Preservation Trust on the channel Island of that name, Durrell goes on Busman's Holiday in each place he visits, taking a look at the local zoos as he travels. First was New York City's Bronx Zoo — "Marvelous," he called it — and next the national zoo here. His lecture here at Constitution Hall Monday was sponsored by the Friends of the National Zoo.

Durrell was escorted by Dr. Theodore H. Reed, director of the zoo. It was a brisk, professional tour Monday in light rain, with the two zoomen exchanging tidbits of shop talk as they went. They discussed rare marmosets and the breeding of equally rare giant otters by someone in Brazil. "I know thou shalt not covet thy neighbor's otter, but . . ." sighed Reed and Durrell gave an assenting grant.

Somewhere en route to the birds Durrell defined his purpose in trawling from city to city giving lectures: He is doing it, he said, to make "these beautiful, lovely birds."

Telethon appears good fund raiser

By RICK DU BROW

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — From a nonpartisan view, the use of a national telethon to raise funds for a political party seems an open, fair and simple procedure.

This was the impression after the Democrats had their first coast-to-coast fund-raising telethon last year. And it remains the impression after their second such affair this past weekend on NBC-TV.

Last year's telethon brought the Democrats about $4 million, and the past weekend's NBC-TV outing brought in well over $5 million.

And one wonders if the Republicans will follow suit with national telethons of their own, for such money is not to be sneezed at, and the GOP would surely also be able to raise large amounts from viewers for its party needs.

From a production viewpoint, the weekend telethon was reasonably successful, considering that such video-fundraising functions are live, often impromptu and generally unwieldy.

Just how dignified the combination of politics and show business was probably depends mainly on whether you are a Republican or Democrat. Of course the Democratic telethon had many strongly partisan moments, with the inevitable thrusts at the political opposition. And of course any political party buying television time is almost predetermined to be that way.

The Democrats originally had planned their NBC-TV telethon, which began at 7 p.m. EDT Saturday, to cover a period of seven hours. But as they approached the $5 million mark they extended their broadcast time for another hour so they could achieve this figure while on the air, and they did.

Last year's Democratic telethon ran a lot longer and ended right before the opening session of the party's national convention, serving as a sort of video lead-in and pep rally.

This past weekend's telethon, cut down sharply from the previous length and concentrated in and around prime viewing time, may well influence the shape and specific scheduling of hours of future similar television fundraising events by political parties and, perhaps, others.

Politics and show business also combined earlier last weekend on NBC-TV in a less significant but highly enjoyable way when Gov. Ronald Reagan was ribbed by entertainers in a "roast" session on the season premiere of the revised Dean Martin series.

The long running series, formerly seen on Thursday, now airs on Fridays and concentrates more heavily on comedy. It has, in fact, been retitled, "The Dean Martin Comedy Hour," and one of its regular segments will be a "roast" session in which well known figures are needle by entertainers and other celebrities. But it is unlikely that any of the roasts will yield more uproarious material than the Reagan segment, in which the governor was a gracious participant and responded at the end with some pretty funny retaliatory remarks of his own.

Noted author

ERICH VON DANIKEN, author of "Gods from Outer Space" and "Chariot of the Gods," will guest on NBC-TV's "The Tonight Show Starring Johnny Carson," Thursday, Oct. 4 (11:30 p.m. - 1 a.m. PT, in color). Earlier this year an NBC-TV special, "Search of Ancient Astronauts," received much critical acclaim and a large amount of mail. The subject of the special was based on Von Daniken's two books.

Actress out of kitchen in show

Fake fisherman

MICHAEL RICHARDSON, left, and Brian Fong disguise themselves as fishermen in order to find a kidnapped mother-and-daughter somewhere in the harbor, in "Foul-Up" on NBC-TV's "Chase" Tuesday, Sept. 25 (1 color, 8-9 p.m. PT).

When Archie Bunker's new neighbor Frank Lorenzo prepares Fettuccini Alfredo it won't be all fiction.

Frank Lorenzo is played by Tony Award-winning actor Vince Gardenia, who joins the cast of "All in the Family" this fall (Saturdays, 9:00-9:30 p.m., on the CBS Television Network), and both the character and the portrayal happen to excel in the culinary arts.

Gardenia is a bachelor of Italian ancestry, a background that contributes to his interest in cooking, but that's not necessarily the reason he practices the skills of cooking.

For many bachelors, meals are just a means of sustenance, but Gardenia was raised with an Italian heritage that looks at dining as much more than just the filling of one's stomach.

Gardenia tends with much tender loving care behind his home in Brooklyn.

So, when it comes to portraying Frank Lorenzo in the kitchen of "All in the Family," Gardenia will draw on his personal culinary skills as much as his acting talent.

But he won't be using any vegetables from his garden in Brooklyn. His role on "All in the Family" requires him to live in Los Angeles and the Brooklyn-garden has gone to seed during his absence.

You can expect Gardenia to be starting another garden, however, in Hollywood or Beverly Hills, perhaps.

Road menace

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The National Highway Traffic Safety Administration reports 385 persons are killed each week on the nation's highways as a result of drinking and driving. Thirty-five Alcohol Safety Action Projects have been established throughout the country to get the problem drinker-driver off the road.

Hoppers blamed for no blooms

BY GEORGE ABRAHAM
WHY FLOWERS DON'T FLOWER: We've had a lot of letters asking us why certain flowering plants don't flower or produce blooms. For example, dwarf and giant marigolds.
They produce nice green growth but no blooms.

Here are some reasons: 1- Leaf hopper and tarnished plant bugs sting the buds, preventing them from opening. If you look at the unopened buds you'll find they've started to turn brown.

Try spraying the plants (covering the buds) with malathion or Sevin and notice how the buds will open.

2. Hot weather can cause buds of certain plants to "blast" or fail to open. For example, anvias, snapdragons and others will often shed buds or flowers when the temperatures go shooting up.

3. Too close planting. Some plants jammed close together lack moisture and nutrients and often fail to send out buds.

4. Too much shade. Flowering plants will not form buds if the shade is too much. Most of them need at least five or six hours of sun for flower buds formation.

Exception to this is the shade loving plant such as Impatiens, and others which can form buds in semi-shade.

MOST POPULAR VEGETABLE? Suppose someone asked you what is the most popular vegetable grown and consumed. What would you say?

The tomato is the top vegetable among consumers and has been that way during the past decade. The growth of fast food stands and pizza emporiums and the increasing use of catsup have boosted tomato consumption to 50 pounds per person per year.

JOHNNY JUMP UPS: What can be done to keep violetts of "Johnny Jump ups" from spreading all over the lawn?

These plants have a mechanism which enables seed to be spread easily and at considerable distances. Even mowing will spread the seed, as will birds.

Control: Spraying weedkiller on will check the plants but may be hazardous to other plants. Dragging a wax weed bar across the lawn will kill the violets without danger of drifting to other plants.

Hand digging can be helpful if only a few plants have started to spread.

HARVESTING SQUASH: Some gardeners have trouble determining when to harvest winter squash and pumpkins. These can be harvested after they have developed the right color for the variety, plus a hard rind. If the rind of the fruit cannot be penetrated by the thumb nail, the fruit is mature.

Fruit should be harvested before frost. Cut the stem from the vine, since fruit without a stem will not store well.

How about spaghetti squash?

This novelty can be picked anytime the outside color is greenish yellow. Some people tell us they have kept the vegetable spaghetti for a year in a dark, cool cellar.

We prepare this one by cooking the squash in boiling scoop out the "spaghetti." Serve with spaghetti sauce or you can put a chunk of butter on and serve it that way. It's great!

HOME MADE GREENHOUSE: A reader writes: "I'm fairly new to greenhouseing—just going into my third year, but want to tell your readers about my experience.

"My greenhouse is small and very make-shift, but the pleasure it gives me can't be measured. Our youngest teenager wouldn't let us throw away the old swing set, so my husband took the frame and added a few 2 x 4's and some furring strips and we covered it with 2 layers of clear 6 mil plastic sheeting.

"It was placed under trees that lose their leaves in fall so is shaded in summer and gets good sun in winter. Since it does not get full summer sun, the plastic lasted a year and a half.

A roll 100 ft. long of 12 ft. wide costs about $15. That price every two years seems small to me.

"I use an electric heater with a thermostat in winter and the children's cold steam vaporizer in summer. We haven't hooked up lights in it yet but we will. Last fall and winter we had lots of gray dark days, therefore not quite as much color."

"I'm addicted to scented leaved plants and just go in and touch these delicious plants gives me a lift. For my purpose at this time in my life the plastic sheeting fills the bill."

Green Thumb note: Thanks for your tip. Glad you're enjoying your homemade greenhouse. Will other readers who own a greenhouse (homemade or otherwise) please write and tell us how you like it?

FREEZING TOMATOES: Why not repeat a method you gave last year for freezing tomatoes? It's very successful. Just remove the stem from ripe and perfect fruit, wash, and place into plastic bags.

Place into the freezer. To use, simply hold under hot water faucet and skin slips off readily.

"They can be used in almost any way except for slicing. This is much simpler than any method you've mentioned recently but caution your readers that the tomatoes should be practically perfect."

Hope more people will write and tell us their way for freezing tomatoes.

Incidentally, if your tomato vines have small fruit resembling small tomatoes don't conclude that a potato and tomato have crossed with each other. The small green balls on your potato vine are the seed.

QUESTION BOX

QUESTION OF THE WEEK: D. E. of Twin Falls: "We are making a list of items used in home beauty aids and hope you can help us. It's a project for our children who are interested in natural beauty aids—made from crops they grow in the garden or in the greenhouse." Can you help?"

Good idea! Let's start out with a cucumber facial. beauticians in high-priced beauty salons apply cucumber facials to cleanse and tighten the skin.

Gently rub pieces of cucumber on your skin. Take citrus fruit, home grown or bought, and use them for beauty aids. Try keeping fresh lemon lime, grapefruit or orange peels in a covered container by the sink. Use them for a quick treatment on your hands after they've been in water.

This also works for removing stains from your hands after gardening. Or throw one or two of the peels in your bath for a refreshing and fragrant pick-up.

Another hand-care idea that uses citrus fruit is a mixture of equal parts honey and orange juice. Leave this on about 10 minutes then rinse.

Lemon is a popular ingredient in many commercially prepared beauty aids. A lemon rinse is used to reduce the oiliness in your hair after shampooing. Dilute the juice of half a lemon in warm water and pour it over your hair. Then rinse again in warm water. The result is a shiny hair that is less oily.

Ever try quince seed lotion? The quince seed gets a "slippery" or mucilaginous when soaked in water. To make the quince-seed lotion, start with $\frac{1}{4}$ cup of quince seeds removed from about 8 to 10 fruits.

Soak the seeds overnight in a pint of water. Rain water is best, but not essential. Strain the liquid to remove the seeds. Add $\frac{1}{2}$ oz. of glycerine, 2 oz. of bay rum, and $\frac{1}{2}$ oz. of any perfume (cheap grade is satisfactory here).

This makes a good project for the children to make on a rainy day. The kids like the feel and the fragrance of the lotion.

N.F. of Sun Valley: "I have a rubber plant and it loses its leaves. What makes this?"

No. 1 cause for dropping of leaves is overwatering or poor drainage. Rubber plants like good drainage, so make sure pebbles are in the bottom of the pot.

Use a soil mixture of 1 part each of sand, peat and loam. Low humidity may cause shedding of leaves, also very low light is responsible for shedding.

Grey Panther leader, 68, termed revolutionary

By DIANE MONK

(c) Chicago Daily News
CHICAGO — Maybe most little old ladies feel more comfortable with recipes than with radical rhetoric, but Maggie Kuhn isn't most old ladies.

Ms. Kuhn (the Ms. is her preference) is 68 years old, and she has wavy white hair and arthritis in both hands.

She's also a revolutionary. Since 1970, when she founded the Gray Panthers, Ms. Kuhn has been working full-time to "radicalize" and liberate America's senior citizens.

Ms. Kuhn, who lives in Philadelphia, was here this week to address more than 1,000 delegates at a conference on aging.

Her topic was "Mobilizing Gray Power."

Ms. Kuhn gave a stunning display of her own "mobilizing" techniques before the speech, when she led an impromptu meeting of a dozen Chicago-area residents who hope to start a Gray Panthers chapter.

The Chicago group was the sort Ms. Kuhn calls "beautiful" — a balanced mix of oldsters and long-haired youth, including a representative of the Black Panther Party.

A key to Ms. Kuhn's vision of human liberation is the dream of a coalition uniting the powerless young and the powerless old. The Gray Panthers claim 1,600 members in several cities, and nearly half are young people.

"It's time for us to start acting like elders of the tribe," Ms. Kuhn declared, and soon people from the group were eagerly volunteering to work on various local projects.

Ms. Kuhn expresses opinions on a variety of subjects. For example:

On television: "Commercials are awful! All of that denture bread and constipation — they're always putting us down."

On youth: "There are so many pressures on the young today, and we have to be their advocates. If we join with them, we have a tremendous potential power base."

On changing society: "We have many options. We can demonstrate, conciliate and negotiate."

Ms. Kuhn urges senior citizens to organize around issues and to "take on" establishment powers including Bell Telephone Co. and the American Medical Association.

The Conference on Aging is sponsored by the National Council on the Aging in Washington, D. C.

Tale behind figure

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Television ratings are usually a matter of cold figures; but there is a personal story behind the extraordinarily strong statistics earned the other day by the movie "Planet of the Apes" on CBS-TV.

The film's overnight ratings in New York City and Los Angeles were overwhelming — they just about went through the roof in New York — and the late Arthur P. Jacobs, who produced "Planet of the Apes" and its sequels, would have smiled knowingly. Then he would have beamed and, in all likelihood, said, "Terrific!"

But the really terrific part of the success of "Planet of the Apes," first as a movie and the springboard for a movie series, and now on television, was the long personal struggle by Jacobs to get the film made. For he had to fight to persuade some key people here that it would be possible for apes to be presented on film with human qualities.
